WARREN COUNTY

Fire completely gutted the home of Clyde Baldwin on Route 6 in Irvine Monday afternoon. The fire is believed to have started in a back room off the kitchen when one of Baldwin's younger sons was filling a lawn mower with gasoline.

William F. Crossett, head of a trucking firm and former Burgess of Warren Borough for eight years, has been named president of Warren General Hospital's board of directors.

THE NATION

Federal troops swarmed into Detroit's largest Negro ghetto with machine guns and rapid-firing rifles to quell the heaviest wave of sniper fire in three days of racial rioting. All policemen and firemen were ordered from the area when federal soldiers entered with orders to shoot.

Some Negroes, contending that firm police action when the Detroit looting began Sunday would have prevented the orgy of destruction, have turned angrily upon the city's police department. They blamed the force for not cracking down hard and soon on looters.

A congressional inquiry into racial rioting was taking form, with leaders of both major parties voicing support for such action. Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, in an effort to prevent the issue from becoming a "political football," suggested that the President name a nonpartisan, nonpolitical study commission.

Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York pleaded with Puerto Ricans to stay off the streets of East Harlem, but violence again broke out. Gunfire was reported at a housing project and Molotov cocktails were thrown in several areas. The mayor had told Puerto Ricans that no more than 200 youths were at the vortex of the rioting.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada rebuked President de Gaulle of France for a speech at Montreal on Monday during which the French had declared, "Long live Free Quebec!" The prime minister said that "Canada will remain united, and will reject any effort to destroy her unity."

Pope Paul VI and Athenagoras I, the ecumenical patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church, took an historic step toward unity in ceremonies in Istanbul. Earlier, the Roman Catholic leader ignored the heat to confer with President Cevdet Sunay of Turkey and to sail down the Bosphorus.

The Communist Party of Poland, according to Western observers, appeared to be involved in an intense factional power struggle, growing out of policy differences over the Middle East conflict and a seemingly antisemitic speech by party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. Some commentators said that a political crisis was brewing as serious as any since the 1956 uprisings.

King Hussein unveiled a sweeping program of military training for those Jordanians not now in the country's 50,000-man army. Last month the king began a reorganization of the regular army.

SPORTS

First place Twin Drive In was upset by Surf Club, 8-5 to highlight last night's action in the Recreation Softball League. In other games, City Ice & Beverage rallied to edge Towne & Country 3-2 and Sparkle Car Wash surprised the Mineral Well Mets, 5-3. The league's fourth annual tournament is slated for this weekend at Carlton Memorial Field. Page A5.

First round pairings for the women's championship at Jackson Valley Country Club have been announced. The opening three-flight play must be completed by August 6. Page A6.

Lou Brock and Orlando Cepeda each drove in two runs to pace St. Louis to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs, moving the Cardinals a full game ahead in the National League pennant race again. In the American League, the California Angels stopped Boston's ten-game winning streak, 6-4 and the Chicago White Sox moved a game-and-a-half in front by tripping Cleveland, 3-1. Page A5.

Nation's Hotspots Are Growing Hotter

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Fires blossomed throughout a Negro neighborhood in Grand Rapids last night, and three Negroes were shot and wounded trying to cool an angry crowd.

FLINT — All three police shifts called to duty, after stores broken into and one set afire by bands of rock-throwing Negro youths.

PONTIAC — Two Negroes shot to death during firebombing, looting and window smashing.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Reinforced police units converged on several areas of the city last night as at least seven firebombings were reported in the second night of racial disturbances here.

Police with drawn guns were being challenged by young gangs at barricades set up in the Dorrr Street area of the city's near South Side Negro district. At least one policeman was injured by a thrown bottle. Several arrests were made.

NEW YORK — Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay visits riot-torn Spanish Harlem, later makes walking tour of other Puerto Rican areas in the city in attempt to cool tensions. Two dead as result of rioting in Spanish Harlem.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — H. Rap Brown, chairman of Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, sought on charges of inciting riot with a speech Monday.

day night to Negro crowd. Ensnaring rioting set afire two square blocks, destroying about a dozen buildings, including a school. National Guard brought in.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A few hundred teenagers were blamed yesterday for touching off two nights of racial disorders that left two Negroes dead and three wounded. Police "will not tolerate unlawful acts and . . . will take all actions needed to stop them," said Public Safety Commissioner Mark H. Tuckey Jr.

His declaration came as the city appeared quiet following outbreaks of shooting, stone-throwing, arson and looting Sunday and Monday nights and early Tuesday in two predominantly Negro neighborhoods.

One Negro was shot through the head Monday night apparently by police, Tuckey said, as he attempted to drive an automobile through a roadblock. A second Negro was killed, apparently at one spot and dumped in an alley several blocks away.

WAUKEGAN, Ill. — Minor damage from a series of blazes set by firebombs.

HOUSTON, Tex. — Young Negroes in groups harassed police, broke windows, stoned cars, and tossed firebombs that exploded harmlessly.

TUCSON, Ariz. — Cars stoned, firebombs hurled, damage light.

NEGROES SAY COPS SHOULD HAVE SHOT

Protest Non-Brutality

By JERRY M. FLINT

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
DETROIT — Many of Detroit's Negroes have turned angrily on Detroit's police, not for possible brutality but for not having cracked down on looters when the trouble began.

The Negroes say firm action early Sunday morning when the looting began could have stopped the orgy of breaking and burning later Sunday and Monday.

Among the Negro leaders agreeing with this widespread sentiment were Charles Tindal, Executive Secretary of the Detroit chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Longworth Quinn, editor of the Michigan Chronicle, the city's Negro newspaper.

At police headquarters early Sunday they insisted that the looting, then centered on 12th st., would spread if it were not stopped quickly.

Quinn's paper also ran an eight-column banner headline reading, "It Could Have Been Stopped."

The paper further said Quinn believed that "if the police had stopped looting when it centered on one 12th st. block early Sunday, when the mood was allowed to become a Roman holiday, the riot could have been prevented."

Many other Negroes, of less influential status, seemed to agree. "I ain't got no respect for 'em now," said one young Negro wearing an army fatigue jacket as he stood on a street lined with wrecked stores. "If they did then what they are doing now," he said nodding toward police with riot guns, "it wouldn't have happened."

"If they had police down here Sunday morning it would have stopped," said Hezekiah Jenkins, 50, a Chrysler factory worker, as he watched cleanup crews at work. Another Negro said that when one police car, with its siren going, rolled up at 4 a.m. Sunday morning when the looting of Jack's Esquire Store began, "50 kids piled out of that store."

But later, when Negroes realized that the police weren't going to stop them, the gathering of mobs, looting and burning intensified. William Green, an official of the United Automobile Workers Union Local 600 at the Ford plant, who lived in the riot area, told a newsman "If they had started shooting the first few hours it wouldn't have lasted a day."

Other Negroes also said the crowds joined in the riot, which took on a carnival atmosphere, only after they realized that the police weren't cracking down. Children told newsmen they knew Mayor Jerome Cavanagh had ordered the police not to shoot.

The police early Sunday appeared anxious not to inflame Negro crowds by any forceful action. Twelfth st. was cordoned off by strong police forces, but little attempt was made to break up the crowds in the then small riot area about six blocks long. Once the outbreak spread to other sections of the city there weren't enough policemen, firemen or even National Guardsmen, initially, to prevent looting and burning.

At news conferences early Sunday, Mayor Cavanagh and Ray Girardin, the police commissioner, indicated they were worried about a charge of "police brutality" that concerned a raid on an illegal drinking spot on 12th street. It was the raid that set off the violence. It was also clear, from the

Gov. George Romney, after learning yesterday afternoon that looting and burning was subsiding, dispatched National Guardsmen to handle outbreaks of rioting in Grand Rapids, Flint and Pontiac.

He received approval for the personnel shift from Lt. Gen. John Throckmorton, 18th Airborne Corps commander, who is in charge of 4,700 paratroopers and about 3,000 National Guardsmen in Detroit.

In Pontiac, three Negroes were killed early yesterday, one by a state legislator protecting his store. Bands of young Negroes threw rocks and smashed store windows in Grand Rapids. In Flint they stoned cars and broke into stores.

In Lansing the Mayor, Max E. Murningham, met with police officials after hearing rumors that "tonight is the night" for racial violence in the capital city.

In Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered National Guard troops to remain ready in the Toledo armory in hopes of preventing further racial violence.

The troop losses from Detroit were partly offset late yesterday when the Pentagon ordered a company of 25 helicopters into the area from Fort Riley, Kan. The craft were called in apparently to provide aerial reconnaissance over still smoldering riot areas.

Encouraged yesterday by the presence of federal troops, many of Detroit's white residents were venturing out of their homes for the first time since rioting began early Sunday morning.

They saw a city that looked — in many areas — as if it were a set for a World War II movie.

No fewer than 871 buildings had been destroyed or heavily damaged by fire, the police said, and at least 1,500 more had been looted for a total property loss of more than $150 million, making it the costliest riot in the nation's history.

Injuries stood at nearly 900 and arrests at 2,415. Of the dead, one was a policeman, one a fireman, and another a white woman slain by sniper fire.

Seven refugee centers were in operation yesterday to care for families that fled from the hardest-hit riot areas. Most fled out of fear rather than because their dwellings had been damaged by fire and looting.

Molotov Cocktails Flying in Harlem

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Mayor John V. Lindsay, trying to halt the spreading East Harlem riots that have already resulted in two deaths, appealed to Puerto Ricans yesterday to stay home and keep their children off the streets.

However, police reported gunfire at a housing project last night and Molotov cocktails were thrown in several areas.

A sniper with a rifle was reported on the roof of a tenement, and a rain of bottles crashed down from a rooftop in another area.

At 10:30 p.m. the police charged a missile-throwing crowd and chased them indoors. The crowd had started taunting the police after a Negro boy challenged a Negro patrolman to draw his gun.

A man identified as Jose Rodriguez was seriously wounded in a gun duel with police in the Bronx. Police said Rodriguez was in a fight with another man, not identified, and fired a shot at them as they approached.

Except for these incidents, the Puerto Rican districts in Harlem and the Bronx were comparatively quiet. Intermittent downpours discouraged any repetition of the surging tumultuous mobs of Monday night. The rain was providential and unexpected; the weather bureau said a thunderstorm "just popped up over us."

Lindsay put the blame for the antipolice demonstrations on a hard core of 200 youths, many of whom, he said, "had too much beer."

Many residents of the district were urging a curfew on bars, taverns and liquor stores. They stopped City Councilman Robert A. Low when he made a walking tour of the district late yesterday and protested that not only the riotous youths, but also policemen, were using the bars too freely.

Efforts of the city, state and social agencies were concentrated on containing the outbreak and preventing its spread to the Negro ghetto of central Harlem.

Youth Wounded In Scuffle At Clarendon

A 17-year-old New Castle youth was taken to Warren General Hospital last night with injuries sustained in a fight with a Warren County youth, according to a report from the Warren County Sheriff's department.

Sheriff Donnell E. Allen Jr. stated last night the incident occurred about 9:30 p.m. near the intersection of Railroad st. and Main st. in Clarendon. The two youths apparently became involved in an argument, Allen said, which later led to a fight. In the scuffle "The Warren County youth allegedly pulled a knife and stabbed the New Castle boy," Allen said. The New Castle boy received a wound in the upper left chest, the Sheriff said.

The New Castle youth was treated at the hospital and released. Both boys were taken to the detention room at the sheriff's office, where they will be held pending a decision by juvenile authorities.

Sam Noloro of the Clarendon Police Department and Sheriff Allen investigated the incident. Because of their age, the names of the youths involved were withheld.

STOKELEY CARMICHAEL

Carmichael to Attend Reds' Meeting in Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Stokely Carmichael was quoted by the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina yesterday as saying American Negroes are organizing urban guerrillas for "a fight to the death."

The U.S. Black Power advocate arrived in Havana to attend a conference of the revolutionary Latin American Organization of Solidarity, opening July 31. Wearing a black jacket and white shirt open at the collar, Carmichael stepped off a Cuban Airline plane from Prague, Czechoslovakia, and was taken to a private room at the airport, where Western newsmen were unable to talk with him.

Carmichael flew Monday from Britain to Prague.

Though he was screened from Western correspondents at the Havana airport, Prensa Latina quoted him as saying in a London interview that racial disorders in New Jersey and Michigan were virtual rebellions.

According to the agency's account:

"In Newark we applied war tactics of the guerrillas," he said. "We are preparing groups of urban guerrillas for our defense in the cities. The price of these rebellions is a high price that one must pay. This fight is not going to be a simple street meeting. It is going to be a fight to the death."

Carmichael said he decided to come to Cuba because of an April message attributed to a vanished Cuban guerrilla leader, Maj. Ernesto "Che" Guevara. This message called on Latin American revolutionaries to create two, three or more Vietnams.

Pittsburgh Man Charged With Shoplifting Here

A Pittsburgh man was arrested early last evening by Warren Borough police, who said he had been caught shoplifting.

Fred Rothman, 43, of 2346 Eldridge st., Pittsburgh, was charged and taken before Peace Justice Martha Lawson. He was fined $25 plus cost and ordered to make full restitution for items allegedly taken from Cowdick's Drug Store.

Officer James Saulsgiver made the arrest at 6 p.m. after police had been told by an employee at Cowdick's that Rothman was in the store and suspected of being a shoplifter. Police said officer Saulsgiver arrested Rothman as he attempted to lift a carpenter's square and a tire gauge valued at 88 cents each.

Police said interrogation at headquarters by Sgt. Roger L. Thein disclosed that Rothman had a past shoplifting record. He had previously taken a heavy duty massager valued at $6.95 from the Cowdick's store on May 3, 1967, according to police.

Shafer Says He Has Plan to Quell Riots

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer says Pennsylvania has a plan designed to prevent the breakdown of law and order if riots should erupt in any city in the state. Shafer mentioned the plan after attending a meeting Monday of the Republican Coordinating Committee in Washington, D.C. He did not elaborate.

AT THE READY IN DETROIT RIOTS

This National Guardsman is at the ready as flames rise from a building set afire by rioters in the battered city of Detroit, where violence broke out anew last night.

WANT HIM FOR INCITING RIOT

FBI Seeks SNCC Head

(C) N. Y. Times News Service CAMBRIDGE, Md.—The FBI yesterday began a nationwide search for H. Rap Brown after charging the youthful chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. State authorities believe that Brown has left Maryland.

An inflammatory speech delivered by Brown to Negroes here Monday was blamed by Gov. Spiro T. Agnew for a night of gunfire and arson in this eastern shore city.

The Maryland National Guard sent 750 troops, each armed with a rifle and 10 rounds of armor piercing ammunition, into Cambridge yesterday. It was the second time in four years that racial violence has brought a military occupation of this canyery and manufacturing community of 15,000 persons, 4,000 of them Negroes. Fires raging out of control for hours early yesterday morning destroyed nearly two blocks of the city's Negro section, the Second Ward. Brown, 23, was formally charged yesterday by the state with inciting a night of arson and sniping in which he and a white policeman were wounded by shotgun fire.

Brown was struck in the left forehead by a single pellet from one of more than a dozen shotgun blasts on Pine st. in the Negro sections about an hour after his fiery speech. He was treated by a local hospital and released.

In his speech he urged about 400 cheering Negroes to "burn this town down. But don't tear down your own stuff."

"When you tear down the white man, brother, you are hitting him in the money," Brown added and then declared, "Shoot him to death...you better get yourselves some guns...this town is ready to explode."

Specifying one particular target, the dilapidated, 50-year-old, all-Negro Pine Street Elementary School, which even local school officials have called "a firetrap," Brown told the crowd last night "you should've burned it down long ago." It was later burned to the ground.

When the city's volunteer firemen refused to enter the Second Ward, "for fear of our lives," a fire official said, the fire at the school spread rapidly into a holocaust.

For a time before dawn yesterday, at least 15 pieces of fire equipment stood in the streets only two blocks from a blazing stretch of Negro stores, restaurants and homes, city officials feared that the spiraling tower of sparks settling on rooftops downwind would ignite other parts of the city.

Still, firemen refused to enter the Negro section, assigning a few fire trucks instead to "water down" the predominantly white-owned Race st. business district, a block away.

The city remains under tight National Guard control, with guard posts at intersections surrounding the Negro section and armed patrols in jeeps. Agnew, who toured the Second Ward this afternoon, said he would "not abide lawlessness and burning in Maryland."

"This whole thing can be laid to one person—Rap Brown," the governor told newsmen.

Israel Not Lacking In Soviet Armament

By LYNN HEINZERLING EL ARISH, Northern Sinai (AP) — They are still digging the remains of the Egyptian army out of the Sinai Desert's sand dunes six weeks after the guns were stilled in the Arab-Israeli war.

Millions of dollars' worth of war booty is being hauled into this rail point on the Mediterranean shore of Sinai by sweating, but willing, Israeli troops.

Here the Egyptian hopes of mid-May—the big Soviet tanks, trucks, guns and tons of ammunition—are being scooped up by cranes and loaded on flatcars. Three big trainloads a day move north to Israel.

"We've already uncovered enough ammunition to keep the Egyptian army going for six months," an Israeli officer said.

Already 700 Soviet T54 tanks have been brought into this vast graveyard of a defeated army. About 100 of them are undamaged and ready to roll. The others will be used to provide spare parts.

Some of the trucks obviously had just been landed from the Soviet Union.

Their speedometers showed about 600 kilometers for the trip from Alexandria or 160 kilometers for the trip from the Suez Canal. Many had not even been repainted in Egyptian colors.

Two Egyptian armored brigades were captured intact. All their equipment is making the train trip to Israel.

Each day small planes are sent out over the desert to spot abandoned equipment. When they report a find, trucks and cranes are sent out to add the pieces to this museum of defeat.

The Israelis are using a small number of volunteers to help round up the equipment, Gordon Arenson, a London truck driver, and Ronny Cohen, dealer in ladies' underwear from Manchester, England, came to Israel six weeks ago to work on a kibbutz or cooperative farm.

"I was picking pears and taking care of chickens when the men came back from the war," Arenson said. "Now I'm back driving trucks. Russian trucks."

The Israelis are giving no definite figures yet on captured equipment. The job of recovering, removing and counting it will take months.

Farther south around the Mitla Pass where miles of road are littered with blackened remains of Egyptian guns, trucks and tanks, the Israelis so far have just shoved them off the road.

In El Arish itself, a small town heavily involved in the war the first day, life is returning more or less to normal under Israeli occupation. The stores are opening. There are the usual street stands of watermelons, red peppers and fruits. The butchers hang their meat out in the open with the dust and the flies as of yore.

AT HEARINGS IN WASHINGTON

Arms Sales Hot Issue

(C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — In reaction to strong congressional protest, two senior administration officials yesterday made a lengthy defense of the United States arms sales program and the Export-Import Bank's role in financing the sales.

Paul Nitze, deputy secretary of defense, and Eugene Rostow, under secretary of state for political affairs, appeared in closed hearings before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. They told the committee that the Export-Import Bank's role was vital to the arms sales program and that Congress had approved its use as a source of loans to other countries for purchases of American arms. The prepared statements of the testimony were later released for publication.

In separate testimony before the committee yesterday, however, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., quoted a 1964 statement from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that the department did not intend to use the bank for arms loans.

Ellender, a vigorous opponent of the bank's involvement in the arms business, said McNamara made the statement in July of that year during testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee. At the time, the administration was seeking passage of an amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act which would allow the Pentagon to guarantee loans for weapons with its revolving arms sales credit fund.

"Again," Ellender quoted McNamara as saying, "that (the Export-Import) bank is not chartered for the purpose of extending credit for the procurement of military weapons...most of these credits could be handled by commercial banks with this government guarantee and we propose to transfer this credit to the banking system under this guarantee."

The Defense Department has used the amendment as authority to obtain so-called "Country-X" arms loans to underdeveloped countries from the Export-Import Bank.

McNamara is expected to be questioned closely on this reported statement during his scheduled appearance today before a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, where considerable sentiment exists for restrictions on the arms sales.

Under the amendment, the Defense Department has been able to guarantee the loans by covering only 25 per cent of their value with funds from the $383 million revolving arms sales credit fund. The amendment does not specifically mention the government-owned Export-Import Bank, but does give the President authority to guarantee arms credits from "any individual, corporation, partnership, or other association doing business with the United States..."

Nitze cited the amendment yesterday as authority for the use of the Export-Import Bank. He said the bank so far had lent $604 million in "Country-X" loans. Under this device, the bank simply opens a line of credit to the Defense Department which uses it to finance the sale.

All these loans were reportedly made in the last two fiscal years to 14 underdeveloped countries. In previous testimony last Monday before the House Banking Committee, administration officials had used a figure of $591 million for the Country-X loans.

Nitze said the Pentagon intends to obtain another $256 million in arms loans for underdeveloped countries from the bank during the current fiscal year.

In addition, he said, the bank has made $1.3 billion in direct arms loans to developed countries and committed itself to lend another $800 million in this fashion. Of this total, $1.7 billion will go to Britain and Australia. The Pentagon is not required to guarantee loans to the developed countries because they are considered good credit risks and the loans are thus direct.

The disclosure last week of the extent of the bank's involvement in the arms business set off an outcry in Congress. Members of the House and Senate banking committees and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have sharply criticized the Defense and State departments for allegedly not informing Congress of the arms loans and other major aspects of the arms sales program.

Rostow conceded yesterday that the administration had not kept "some members" of the House and Senate banking committees "adequately informed about military transactions involving the Export-Import Bank."

He asserted, however, that the administration had kept members of the Senate and House foreign relations committees adequately informed and would now provide such information on "a classified basis" to the banking committee members.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Sen. Stuart Symington contend this is not true. They say the administration did not mention the Export-Import Bank's involvement to the committee until the committee had discovered this itself.

Forrestal is Used In Vietnam Fight

SAIGON (AP) — The mammoth aircraft carrier Forrestal, newly overhauled and equipped with the most modern secret electronic system in the world, has begun operations against North Vietnam for the first time, U.S. military headquarters said today.

The disclosure that the 60,000-ton Forrestal was on war patrol at "Yankee Station" in Gulf of Tonkin came in the day's routine military communiqué which told of strikes yesterday from the carriers Forrestal, Oriskany and Bon Homme Richard.

On the ground, only scattered action was reported but Viet Cong terrorists were on a rampage. Communist guerrillas wearing South Vietnamese army uniforms seized an ambulance bearing Red Cross markings last night and used it to launch lethal surprise attacks on a militia post and police station near Saigon.

At least eight national policemen were killed and the militia platoon of perhaps 25 men suffered "heavy casualties," South Vietnamese military headquarters reported.

It was the second such terrorist attack in two days. The previous night a band of guerrillas in South Vietnamese ranger uniforms entered a village near Saigon and dragged five men and one woman to a roadside execution. The victims were shot in the head with a .45-cal-ber pistol. Placards were then placed on the bodies marking them as "police spies."

The pattern was similar last night when a small band of guerrillas in South Vietnamese uniforms seized the empty ambulance about six miles northwest of Saigon—not far from the previous night's incident. The guerrillas plied into the ambulance and at gunpoint forced the driver to take them to the nearby militia post.

The guerrillas evidently took the militia post by surprise. At the same time they attacked the nearby police post. Details of both assaults were confused, but evidently the Viet Cong got away without suffering any losses.

The Viet Cong also carried off 10 weapons and two small electric generators.

Military authorities fear more such surprise attacks by small units near Saigon as the date for presidential elections in September draws closer.

American and South Vietnamese military headquarters reported only scattered ground fighting in the war but continued heavy air strikes in the North and B52 raids against Red concentrations in the South.

The B52s came in late yesterday against infiltration routes just west of the A Shau Valley and followed up Wednesday morning with more raids against targets not immediately disclosed.

1943 RACE RIOTS RECALLED

"VIVE LE QUEBEC LIBRE"

French President de Gaulle tells a cheering crowd of French-Canadians "Vive le Quebec Libre!" His comments Monday have drawn strong reactions both from Anglo-Canadians and from citizens of France who oppose his support of a Free Quebec.

WITH HIS QUEBEC STATEMENTS

DeGaulle Puzzles French

(c) N. Y. Times News Service PARIS—A broad segment of French opinion appeared yesterday to have been shocked by General de Gaulle's appeal to Quebec separatism.

A listener telephoned a radio station to demand, "How would we feel if Prime Minister Wilson were to come to Brittany and cry, 'Vive la Bretagne Libre!'"

Government officials were silent. There was no comment either in the usually pro-Gaullist Paris Presse-L'Intransigeant, which reported the affair fully under a large front-page headline, "De Gaulle Raises a Storm in Canada."

Non-Gaullist and anti-Gaullist newspapers were stern in their criticism.

The rightwing Aurore and the independent Combat, both fiercely anti-Gaullist, were particularly violent in frontpage editorials. Combat's headline: "De Gaulle Annexes Quebec."

The moderate Roman Catholic daily La Croix, which rarely takes what might be considered a political position, attributed the president's "imprudent words" to an "American obsession" which dominates his policies and "leads him to attitudes and orientations disconcerting to Frenchmen as much as to foreigners."

Le Monde, the influential afternoon paper which usually mingles sympathy with criticism in discussing Gaullist policy, had no sympathy for it today.

In the general's statement in Quebec, Le Monde said, "the exaltation of nationalism, the anti-American phobia, the glorification of 'Francehood' reach a sort of paroxysm."

Like other commentators, Le Monde's editorialist emphasizes that France is not in a position to offer Quebec the economic aid it would need if the province were to split off completely from its North American neighbors.

Paris Presse was able to find a jest in the affair. Its cartoonist portrayed a wakeful President Johnson in bed groaning, "I've had a horrible nightmare: Louisiana invited de Gaulle for an official visit." To which Mrs. Johnson replies: "Lyndon dear, you know what the psychiatrist said: you MUST stop thinking of HIM all the time, or you'll have a nervous breakdown."

SUBVERSIVES COMMITTEE QUIET

No Interviews Given

By JOSEPH E. MOHAT WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board closed the door yesterday to any public utterances by its newest, embattled member, Simon F. McHugh.

Chairman John W. Mahan said McHugh, 29, would say nothing to newsmen about his recent appointment to a $26,000-a-year seat on the panel.

McHugh married a former secretary to President Johnson last August. Congressional critics have charged that this was his only apparent qualification for elevation from a $17,500 slot in the Small Business Administration.

What's worse, from the standpoint of McHugh's four board colleagues, his appointment has triggered a congressional probe that could result in the abolition of the 17-year-old board.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and others have charged that the board, with virtually nothing to do, is a boondoggle, slang for a waste of the taxpayer's money.

The board has been allowed $295,000 for the current fiscal year by the House, but the Senate has yet to act.

McHugh, in his second $500 week on the board, has returned no telephone calls from newsmen since public attention focused on him last week.

Secretaries have reported him to be "in a meeting" or "out of the building on official business."

A visitor to his office, two blocks from the White House, found no signs Monday that it had been occupied since the departure of McHugh's predecessor, Thomas J. Donegan.

What presumably will be the desks of McHugh and his secretary stand side by side, bare and dusty. The official, government-issue color portrait of President Johnson gazes down, crinkly-eyed, on the emptiness.

Yet Chairman Mahan insisted that "SI's been here."

"He's done everything I've asked him to," the Montana Democrat and former commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said. "But in view of the fact that there's legislation involving this board in Congress, we feel it would be inappropriate for him or any of us to grant interviews."

It is not uncommon for executive agencies to hold forth at length with the press when legislation affecting them is pending in Congress.

According to the board's general counsel, Frank R. Hunter Jr., McHugh's first assignment is to "read up on past cases" of the board "so he'll be able to apply past guidelines in determining who's Communist and who isn't."

This opening task involves four cloth-bound volumes, totaling seven inches in thickness, of "Reports of the Subversive Activities Control Board."

The board — like the Communist-registration statutes it deals with — is a product of the outcry over communism in the late 1940s and early '50s.

Upon request by the attorney general, it's supposed to determine, after hearings, what individuals and organizations are Communist. Those labeled then are required to register with the attorney general.

Nobody ever has registered, although the board has stamped "Communist" on 44 individuals and two dozen groups.

The federal courts have declared unconstitutional almost every registration provision of the Internal Security Act. Individuals, said the Supreme Court, cannot be forced to incriminate themselves by registering.

Jamestown Gets $174T For Renewal

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — City officials yesterday afternoon received word from the offices of Robert F. Kennedy and Congressman Charles E. Goodell that the department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a federal advance to Jamestown for $174,605. The funds are to be used for survey and planning of the $4.8 million Jamestown Urban Renewal Project.

Anticipating that the city will later apply for loans and contract grants, Senator Kennedy said that $4,833,000 has been reserved by the Housing and Urban Development department.

Mayor Dunn indicated that survey and planning work would get underway immediately under the direction of Kendree and Shepard, a Philadelphia urban renewal consulting firm hired by the city last fall. The project involves industrial expansion in the Chadakoin river corridor and demolition of sub-standard housing in the Brooklyn Square area.

Canada Deplores DeGaulle Stand

By JAY WALZ (c) N. Y. Times News Service MONTREAL—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson last night rebuked Charles de Gaulle of France for supporting a "Free Quebec." Pearson called de Gaulle's remarks "unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government."

"Canada will remain united, and will reject any effort to destroy her unity," the prime minister said.

Pearson's statement came after an all-day cabinet meeting in Ottawa called to discuss speeches made Monday by de Gaulle in the course of a motor trip from Quebec.

At a heady reception accorded de Gaulle at Montreal's city hall last night by a crowd of about 10,000, including banner-carrying, cheering separatist extremists, he shouted back "Vive Quebec Libre!" the separatists' favorite slogan.

The French president's reaction to Pearson's statement could not be immediately learned. De Gaulle, who toured Expo 67 yesterday, is scheduled to go to Ottawa, the Canadian capital, for a protocol visit that will include a talk with Pearson. The French leader will end his five-day Canadian trip Thursday.

Pearson referred to the separatists as "a small minority of our population" in his statement last night.

"Certain statements of the president (of France) lend encouragement to a small minority of our population whose aim is to destroy Canada, and as such they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government," said Pearson.

"We attach the greatest importance to our friendship with the French people. It has been and remains the strong purpose of the government of Canada to foster that friendship."

"I hope that my discussions later this week with General de Gaulle will demonstrate that this purpose is one that he shares."

As the cabinet met, hundreds of protests poured into Ottawa from all parts of Canada, including the province of Quebec itself. Except for the Montreal separatists, who are strong on local university campuses, the feeling here was that as a visitor enjoying Canada's hospitality, de Gaulle had gone "too far."

De Gaulle came to Canada Sunday as one of about 60 heads of state who have accepted the Canadian government's invitation to take part in celebrations marking 100 years of the 1867 confederation, uniting English and French Canadas. The year-long centennial program was devised to focus national attention on national unity.

Since his arrival in Quebec, however, de Gaulle has devoted most of his speeches to the French-speaking province's aspirations to assert its "French being," and to emerge as "master of its own house."

At the city hall reception, the General was greeted by a throng shouting "Vive de Gaulle" and chanting such slogans as "Quebec for the French" and "Self-determination for Quebec."

De Gaulle, speaking from a high balcony, said that at the reception he sensed "the same atmosphere I felt during the year of liberation"—1944, when Paris was freed after four years of Nazi occupation.

At State Hospital

A 26-year-old Erie father of one, charged with the pre-dawn murder of a Greene township mother of nine, was admitted to Warren State Hospital Monday night for psychiatric observation.

David G. Kostovic, the murder suspect was arrested by state police officials about 9 a.m. Monday with the murder of Mrs. Lucille Riccio and assault with intent to kill her husband, Robert and the couple's 18-year-old son, Robert Jr. at the Rickrode home shortly after 9 a.m. The victim's husband was struck in the left arm and St. Vincent Hospital officials said his arm has been amputated.

Budget Pressure Blasted

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI HARRISBURG (AP) — A House Republican took to the floor yesterday to deliver a scathing attack against Gov. Shafer's budget secretary for attempting subtly to pressure him into line on taxes.

When Rep. George Gekas of Harrisburg, a tax holdout, concluded, he was roundly applauded in the unusual turn of events by the minority Democrats and publicly praised by Minority Leader Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia.

The object of Gekas's discontent was a letter he had received last Friday from Budget Secretary Arthur F. Sampson warning that Harrisburg stood to lose $1.5 million in state funds, if Shafer's $1.79 billion budget and $267 million tax package were not enacted.

"I consider its contents an affront to this House and to me as a member of this House," Gekas declared.

"I need no reminder from Mr. Sampson as to what my duties are," he continued to the applause of the Democrats, who seemed surprised and pleased at the unexpected attack.

Gekas accused Sampson of attempting to mislead him, by stating that Harrisburg would lose $147,000 in services to the blind and $107,600 for nursing scholarships if the budget were not passed.

"Mr. Sampson implies that total programs will be wiped out, and this is misleading," the freshman lawmaker exclaimed. "Under these circumstances, how can I put faith in the figure of $267 million (in taxes) or any other figure proposed by the budget secretary?"

The Gekas assault was the only development of note on the tax front, which has been stalled for two months now as Republicans are unable to secure 102 votes for the money package.

Republican leaders acknowledged that no end to the stalemate was in immediate sight, although one official said, without elaboration, that the governor "had some irons in the fire."

Both chambers, meanwhile, ran through routine business calendars as all major action seems to have been bottled up pending resolution of the tax dispute.

Fineman, who thus far has succeeded in keeping his 99 members solidly lined up against new taxes, was quick to praise Gekas for his stand.

Scuba Divers Serve a Cause

Last Saturday's bizarre and tragic drowning at Allegheny Reservoir may never be repeated — at least not under the same set of circumstances. Odds are, however, that the vast lake may be the scene of other drownings since people are ever prone to risk their lives on or in the water.

In most incidents of this nature few realize the importance of the scuba or skin divers to the rescue operation, particularly in locating and retrieving bodies of victims. The car involved could have been brought to the surface by using a grappling hook. Chances are, though, the bodies might have been lost in the deep waters of the reservoir for a considerable length of time.

The men who handle this phase of the gruesome rescues are all volunteers. They buy their own gas and supply their own equipment. All usually leave their regular jobs and are not affiliated with any particular organization. But they are obviously willing to sacrifice to help their fellow men.

The thought has been raised that perhaps the area divers who rise to emergencies, while not asking nor expecting, should perhaps receive some compensation for their vital role. Perhaps it's a county responsibility or maybe a service club or combined service clubs could take it on as a project.

Steps are contemplated to see what can be done and it seems like a great idea. When the divers are called to the scene of a diving, their underwater activities cease to be an enjoyable hobby and take on a grim reality.

Cuba's Defiant Mood

(C) N.Y. Times News Service HAVANA.—The Cuban government is now engaged in an interesting experiment. Economically, it is still relying on aid and trade with the Soviet Union, but ideologically it seems to be following, not the Soviet co-existence line in Latin America, but the more revolutionary doctrines of Communist China.

The mood here for the moment is one of revolutionary zeal. This may be deceptive, for it is now celebrating the 14th anniversary of Fidel Castro's abortive attack on the Moncada barracks at Santiago de Cuba on July 26, 1953, and it is holding a meeting of the Organization of Latin American Solidarity — so-called, presumably, because there is no "solidarity" between the Communist delegates who have gathered here to discuss ways and means of communizing the hemisphere.

Nevertheless, the intent of the Castro government for the moment is being made perfectly clear. It is glorifying its own revolution and offering it to the visiting Communists from the hemisphere for export.

On the vast facade of the Ministry of Industry building in the center of Havana is a huge electrical sign in the shape of Latin America, proclaiming revolution for the whole continent and showing gun flashes at all the present guerrilla targets in Venezuela, Guatemala, Bolivia, and Colombia.

All along the 700-mile road from Havana to Santiago de Cuba, there are signs exhorting the people to identify themselves with the Communist guerrilla movement in Vietnam and elsewhere: "We stand with the Arab states." "For Vietnam—even with our blood." "The world will have many Vietnamese."

Daddy Looks Slender in Gray

The four of us strolled the International Shopping Bazaar at Freeport on Grand Bahama Island. This consists of 20 acres of make-believe. The streets are narrow and cobbled. Each one represents a nation—Japan, Spain, Sweden, France, China and Algeria. The decor is authentic and so is the muted music.

On Hong Kong Street, we scanned the tea houses and the oriental shops, each with his separate dream. Kelly's was to price everything in every window. Kathleen, our 12-year-old, had heard the phrase "crepes suzette" and couldn't edge it out of her mind. Karen, 5 feet 6, and 14 years old, had met a boy named Jay at a swimming pool. He asked her if she could get permission to meet him at the King's Inn movie at 8:30 p.m.

MASON DENISON Something Is Missing

HARRISBURG — As the administration of Governor Raymond Philip Shafer this week rounds out its seventh month of existence, it is fairly clear by now that something is missing. The factual record speaks for itself, perhaps perfectly exemplified by what has (or has not) happened on the legislative front.

It is interesting to note that the Legislature, thus year ruled by members of the Governor's own political party (which in theory should have meant a yes-yes-Governor session) has compiled a somewhat remarkable, if not historical, record insofar as His Excellency is concerned.

The fact sheet shows — the Governor's own fact sheet, that is — that of 44 legislative items classified as "major administration bills," only 12 can be classified as gaining full legislative clearance in this more than half-year-long 1967 session.

What is perhaps more interesting — and significant — is that of these 12 "major administration measures" to have gained legislative approval, nine were involved in the constitutional convention and constitutional amendments issues of early in the session.

Eliminate these (which did not require gubernatorial approval) and at this tail end of seven months, Mr. Shafer has signed into law the whopping total of three "major administration bills!"

As for "progress" on this front, go back to mid-May to compare with the present status, and the tally stood at the nine constitutional issues cleared — and not a single major administration bill signed into law (again this by record of the Governor's office).

All this is rather interesting too in light of the confident and somewhat down-the-nose prediction by some administration legislative leaders back in May that they felt confident "they" would be able to wind up the 1967 session by June or July at the latest.

This was — and is — rather ridiculous.

Even as of this week there are four major subjects on which the Shafer Administration hasn't even introduced legislation (which fall within its own category of major administration legislation!).

But forgetting the fact that there are still four areas in which the Shafer Administration has yet to have legislation prepared is the fact that the Governor's $1.3 billion (or whatever the ever-changing figure is at the moment) general fund budget hasn't even been given legislative clearance (although the new fiscal year is now a month old).

And of course not to be forgotten (although who wouldn't like to!) is the fact that the administration still doesn't have its program of $267 million (or whatever the ever-changing figure is at the moment) in new taxes approved.

As for those partisans who say, ah yes, but look at the difficulty he is having with a politically-mung Legislature, a look at a preceding administration or two is perhaps noteworthy.

For example, his immediate predecessor (Republican) Governor Scrantom's last two years enjoyed a fully-controlled anti-administration Democratic House of Representatives.

Or, going back another administration to that of the late (Democratic) Governor Lawrence, while he enjoyed Democratic control of the House of Representatives throughout his tenure, not once during his four years did he have the Senate in pro-administration Democratic hands.

Incumbent Governor Shafer? He started in January with Republican administration control of both House and Senate, and (in theory at least) he still enjoys it today.

Back at the hotel, we clocked Karen. She was back at 10:30 p.m. with a new shy radiance. She and her mother disappeared for a conference. Jay, it seems, sat with his parents and didn't see Karen until the house lights came up.

"He said I'm the most beautiful thing he has seen on the island," said Karen. "His parents are flying home tomorrow, so he asked me for my home address. Is that all right? Also, he held my hand when he walked me back here. At the elevator, he said he didn't think I'd let him kiss me because it is too soon. I said yes, it was too soon."

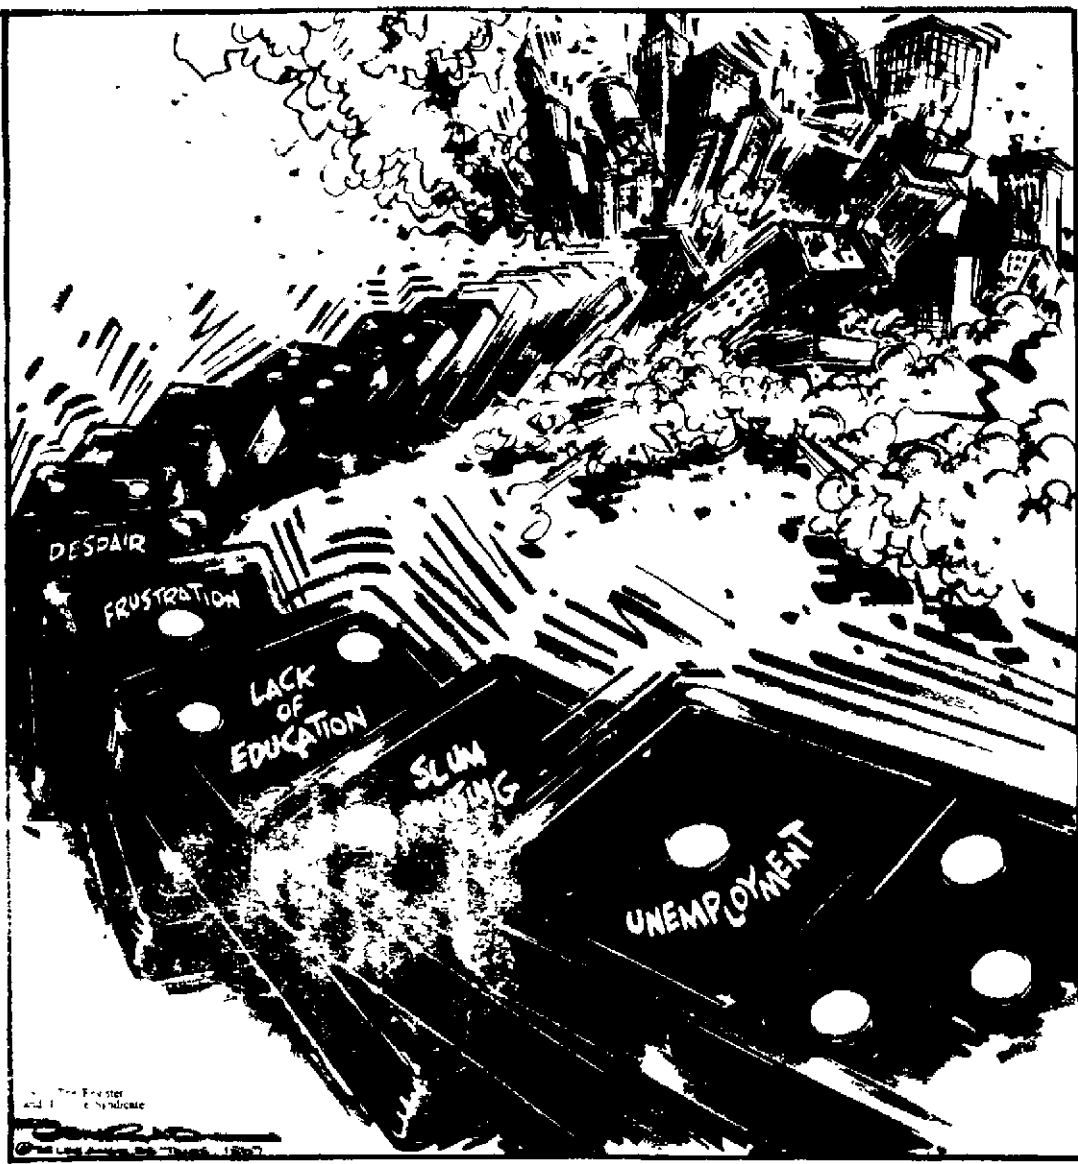

She left her mother and floated into a wall. Kathy said she was tired, but she adores the head waiter. Mother put a Band Aid on her heel. Everybody said daddy looks slender in gray. . .

out complaint—than ever before. Her dream was realized. She proposed that I buy something for myself.

We walked into a dim little place called Lee's Hong Kong Shop. Shelves were heavy with bolt goods. Kwan Kee Woo, 63, sat behind a counter. His son, Lin Fook Woo, 26, who festoons his face with a big smile, bowed rapidly. He speaks good English to his customers, emphasizing words by tapping one palm on the other. He addresses dad in Cantonese.

In five minutes, I had selected a light-weight gray cloth. Kwan ran a tape measure up and down and sideways, as Lin filled out a chart of oriental ideographs with measurements of paunchy belly and distinctive derriere. Lin said the shop closes at night, but he would like me to come back for a "fitting" after dinner.

We walked 300 yards to King's Inn and had dinner in the Ribs Room, which is British by choice and French by accent. Kathy said she didn't care what the steak was like, so long as she had crepes suzette. Karen sat stiffly through dinner, studying her watch. Permission was granted for her to go to the hotel movie. She couldn't remember Jay's last name, but he was 17 and mannerly and he came from The Bronx.

HHH Pushes Summer Projects

WASHINGTON—Vice President Humphrey, who is LBJ's unofficial behind-the-scenes liaison man on race problems, has been working around the clock on ways of getting Negro teenagers off the streets.

He's been pushing all sorts of projects, ranging from Army, Navy and Marine band concerts in the slum areas of Washington to free jet rides by the major airlines for Negro teenagers.

His chief drive, however, has been to persuade private companies to sponsor block recreation facilities in Negro sections of cities and to persuade the National Guard to open up armories and summer camps.

One company, American Machine and Foundry, for instance, has undertaken to supply playground equipment, which is carted into a city block in the evening and put in use on a slum street roped off from traffic. Fireplugs are lapped under firemen's supervision and the whole street, one block long, becomes a playground area.

Humphrey has also persuaded the National Guard and the Pentagon to open armories and military bases as youth camps. The Red River Army Depot at Texarkana, Tex., has opened a day camp on its five-acre depot at Elliott Lake. Kelly Air Force Base at San Antonio has opened its swimming pools and playing fields to teenagers two mornings each week. Fort Ritchie, Md., will provide barracks, mess halls, and recreation facilities for 720 Baltimore boys. Fort Benning, Ga., has donated classrooms and a library for Head Start classes.

Humphrey points out that the administration has helped get one million jobs for unemployed youths this summer. Of these the government itself provided 250,000 jobs, while private employers came up with 750,000. The Vice President says this is not enough, but it's better than the record for any previous summer.

Here in Washington, Rep. Joe Resnick, D-N.Y., was slapped down by the House Agriculture Committee for criticizing the Farm Bureau, but out in the Midwest his campaign has won a lot of friends.

Resnick pointed out that the Farm Bureau was nothing but a glorified conglomeration of tax-free business and insurance companies operating under the cloak of helping the farmer.

Additional information has recently come from Illinois showing that the Farm Bureau in that state has 193,000 members. Yet there are only 132,000 farms in Illinois and only 120,000 farm operators. Therefore the membership deserts' as he did last Friday," one delegate said. "None of us think deserts are waterlogged."

Goldberg's willingness to help the Soviet delegation won the applause of some of the U.N.'s most experienced diplomats. It demonstrated, they thought, a restraint on the part of the American delegation that reflected something of their more flexible approach to East-West relations.

They had feared that the U.S. delegation, seeing a considerable diplomatic triumph in the making as a result of the Soviet reverses, would push its advantage too far. They were anxious lest the Russians, after their diplomatic defeat over the Middle East, felt it necessary to make trouble elsewhere to recoup their prestige.

But Goldberg showed good will, the diplomats say. Moreover, the Russians' initiative, when it became known, regained some of the position they lost through their theretofore inflexible stand.

After two years at the U.N., the American ambassador is unlikely, as he says, to "confuse a change in the weather with a change in direction" on the Soviet Union's part. But he is willing to talk any time if this encourages "slow, painfully slow" progress toward the establishment of the rule of law.

Two years' dealings with 121 nations have convinced him that, under present circumstances,

DREW MIDDLETON

Soviets Respect Goldberg

(C) N.Y. Times News Service UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Arthur J. Goldberg was appointed United States representative at the United Nations two years ago today. It is unlikely that his assignment has given him a more satisfying moment than that at 4 p.m. on July 17 when the Soviet Ambassador to the United States, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, arrived at the U.S. mission looking for help.

Goldberg's subsequent assistance to Dobrynin and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in drafting a compromise resolution that had been adopted by the General Assembly, would have called for an Israeli withdrawal from occupied territory and contributed to peace-making in the Middle East is generally regarded as the apogee of his career at the U.N.

To other diplomats the approach amounted to acknowledgment by the Soviet delegation of the ambassador's abilities as a negotiator and a compromiser behind the scenes — abilities that most agree to shine his oratory.

Despite the kudos his aptitude for behind-the-scenes negotiation has brought him, the ambassador still enjoys most those moments when the president of the assembly calls on him. But his colleagues say they would enjoy the speeches more if they were shorter.

"There's no reason why Arthur should talk about 'aid in the Farm Bureau must include about 70,000 non-farmers.

Resnick claims that anyone who wants to buy insurance with one of the Farm Bureau agencies signs up for the insurance policy and then, as a side issue, gets membership in the Farm Bureau. It's simply a glorified means of selling insurance, says Resnick.

Not many Congressmen want to tangle with the non-profit organizations. But Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., has dared call attention to the big bonanza given to charity and church groups through low postage. Back in the Hoover administration church and charity groups were voted a one cent rate per piece of mail.

During the 39 years since then, Rep. Hechler points out, first class rates have shot up from two cents to five cents and are going higher. Meanwhile the third class rate for non-profit organizations has increased from one cent to one and one-quarter cents.

"These organizations now account for 17 per cent of all bulk rate third class mail, as compared with only 8 per cent in 1952," says the Congressman from West Virginia. "In the same period the volume of non-profit third class mail has shot up 250 per cent from slightly over 800 million pieces to nearly 2.9 billion pieces."

Hechler is in favor of charity and church organizations but doubts whether they should be subsidized through postal rates.

FREEDOM MARCH - 1967 STYLE

SYLVIA PORTER Your Fixed Expenses

Yesterday's column gave you the basic rules for calculating your total expected yearly income and dividing it into 12 monthly periods, the first step in drawing up any budget.

Your next step is to list, on a second sheet of paper, all of your fixed expenses during the coming year and also to convert each of these to a monthly basis. These are the inflexible, unavoidable bills you must arrange to pay before you can know how much you'll have left over to spend on flexible, day-to-day expenses and on extras.

Among the less obvious fixed expenses to include on your monthly list are savings. Put down a total you could reasonably expect to save each month. By treating savings as an expense and budgeting for savings as you must for rent or mortgage payments, you will discipline yourself into building a nestegg. Your small monthly totals will become big totals over a period of time.

Your savings total always should include an emergency fund equal to at least two months income, to cover big unforeseen expenses such as illness, unexpected home repairs, moving expenses if you change job locations. (Note: the emergency part of your savings fund should be kept in a readily accessible form, that is, in cash or its equivalent.)

As a starter, earmark five per cent of your total monthly income for savings, and boost the percentage from there if you can swing it.

Also among your less obvious fixed expenses are monthly personal allowances for each family member. The amount of allowance you allot to each will depend partly on what expenses each person is expected to meet out of the allowance. Is it supposed to pay for Christmas presents? School clothes? Books? Postage? Lunches? But whatever your decision, this allowance should belong to the individual and what he or she does with it should be strictly his or her own affair. A family council is probably the best way to arrive at specific allowances for each member. The council can be reconvened periodically for review and revision of the amounts.

Among the more obvious fixed expenses to include on your monthly list are:

- + Rent or mortgage payments;
- + Predictable, regular household bills for such items as fuel, telephone and utilities;
- + Instalment payments you make regularly for your car, washing machine, personal or education loan, etc.;
- + Big once-a-year or twice-a-year obligations such as real estate taxes, tuition payments, auto and fire insurance premiums, money for back-to-school clothes, pledged contributions. Remember: divide each of these sums into equal monthly totals.
- + Medical expenses which can be accurately pinpointed for the year: individual health insurance premiums, yearly X-rays, physical, dental and eye exams, predictable drug and vitamin bills.
- + Automobile and commuting expenses which you can accurately estimate, such as commuter train tickets, monthly garage bills, average gas and oil bills for your car or cars.

Total all your fixed expenses for each month and for the whole year. Deduct these totals from the monthly and yearly income figures you have put down on sheet No. 1.

You have now taken care of your inflexible expenses which, in effect, you must regard as already spent from each paycheck. By dividing them into monthly totals, you have eliminated the shock of the big now-and-then bills and put the expenses into realistic focus.

Remaining are the totals available to cover your flexible, day-to-day expenses and to finance your luxuries.

Tomorrow's how to estimate and juggle day-to-day expenses.

Among the less obvious fixed expenses to include on your monthly list are savings. Put down a total you could reasonably expect to save each month. By treating savings as an expense and budgeting for savings as you must for rent or mortgage payments, you will discipline yourself into building a nestegg. Your small monthly totals will become big totals over a period of time.

Your savings total always should include an emergency fund equal to at least two months income, to cover big unforeseen expenses such as illness, unexpected home repairs, moving expenses if you change job locations. (Note: the emergency part of your savings fund should be kept in a readily accessible form, that is, in cash or its equivalent.)

As a starter, earmark five per cent of your total monthly income for savings, and boost the percentage from there if you can swing it.

Surf Club Upsets Twin in Rec Loop

By JOHN GANLEY
Two upsets and one close call highlighted the Recreation Softball League action last night.

The big upset came in a game played on the Westside diamond. League-leading Twin Drive In was tripped by the Surf Club, 8-5. In the opener of a double-header at Carbon Memorial, City Ice rallied to break a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and defeat Towne and Country. Sparkle pulled a 5-2 victory away from the Mineral Well Mets in the nitecap.

Surf Club and Twin Drive In were tied 4-4 after six innings. The Surfers rallied with one out in the top of the seventh. Don Love poked a single to right, but ended up on third after the right fielder bobbled the ball.

The tie-breaking run was set up by a triple by Dick Merenick. The Surfer third sacker scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Marti.

The Surfers added a couple of insurance runs when Charlie Kurz reached on an error, Bill Slocum singled and Ken Buchanan got a gap-shot triple sending both men home.

TDI scored one in the last of the seventh when Skip Armstrong singled, went to second on a muff in the outfield and scored on a single by Tony Ross.

The Surfers had a 4-1 after 4½ innings, but Twin Drive In rallied for three in the fifth to tie the score. Big blow in the inning was a double by Jim Davis.

In the opening game of the Carbon Field doubleheader, Towne and Country scored a pair of runs in the first inning and were coasting along until the fifth when City Ice erupted for a pair to tie the game.

In the last of the seventh, Ed Cummings led off the frame with a single to left and moved to second on a misplay in the Nighthubber outfield. Edmowed to third on a fly out by brother Lou Bull Cummings (another brother) drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to center.

T & C scored a pair of unearned runs off Charlie Pettit in the first. Daje Swanson cracked a single and Don Holmberg walked. Both scored on an error by Pettit when he fielded a bunted ball by Jim Ostergard.

Under the arcs it was almost a replay of the first game. The visitors scored two runs in the first inning but ended up on the losing end of the tally at the end of the game.

Mineral Well got a pair of runs on a single by Blair Smoulder. He drove in Jack Suppa and Roger Colvin, who walked and singled respectively.

Sparkle bounced back with three runs off Met hurler Herb Bouquin in the third inning. Ron Fehlman led off with a double. He moved to third on a single by Frank Suppa. Fehlman scored and Suppa moved up as they executed a double steal. Ken Mignogna singled Suppa to third. A sacrifice fly by Bob Reese drove in the second run and a double by Doug Poust produced the go-ahead run.

The Mets tied the game in the fifth on a double by Morty Steele and a single by Dick DeSimone.

In the last of the fifth, Frank Suppa belted a double. Mignogna followed with a single, an error on the throw to the plate allowing Suppa to score. Doug Baldensperger, the winning pitcher, swatted a sacrifice fly to left to give the Car Washers their final 5-3 margin.

LYING DOWN ON THE JOB

Baltimore Orioles' reserve catcher Larry Haney manages to hold onto the ball as he makes a falling catch of a high foul fly off the bat of Boston's Mike Ryan in a game played earlier this season. Haney is a promising prospect who spells Oriole regular Andy Etchebarren on occasion.

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS, BUT . . .

BoSox Keeping Petrocelli Benched While Club Wins

By JAMES F. DONOHUE

Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Williams, who claims he isn't overly superstitious, has been keeping his All-Star shortstop riding the bench for fear of breaking up a combination that has led the Boston Red Sox on a pennant-bent winning rampage.

The red hot Hose were riding a 10-game winning streak as they opened a crucial home series with the third-place California Angels last night.

Going into the contest, Boston was only one-half game behind the league-leading Chicago White Sox.

Manager Williams will keep veteran utility man Jerry Adair,

30, at shortstop for the time being even though Rocco Petrocelli's injured wrist seems healed and the sometimes brittle shortstop seems ready to go.

Williams describes himself as "no more superstitious than anyone else" but no man can completely ignore the element of luck in baseball.

Petrocelli, for example, is walking around with his hair falling into his eyes and over his ears and down his neck. It's superstition. "I'm not going to get a haircut until we lose," he says.

Petrocelli injured his right wrist at Fenway Park July 14

and was replaced by Adair.

That game with Baltimore was the last one Boston lost.

Adair has more going for him than being a walking lucky charm. Since taking over for Petrocelli, Adair has handled 90 chances without an error and his hitting (.226) has come alive when it's been needed most.

Petrocelli, along with wearing his hair long, also is willing to ride the bench if it will help the Red Sox.

"I understand," he says, then adds, "I'll have to bring my bat to the park in a violin case if we keep going, I won't get much chance to use it."

Williams put Petrocelli in for

Adair Sunday when the Red Sox

had an 8-3 lead after five innings in the first game of a doubleheader with Cleveland.

Petrocelli doubled to left in his only appearance at bat and handled his one fielding chance.

His wrist seemed strong.

Drive in Two Runs Apiece In 4-3 Victory over Cubs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock cracked two hits, scored two runs and Orlando Cepeda drove in two runs sending St. Louis into first place in the National League with a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs last night.

The Cardinals knocked out loser Bob Gardner with a three-run first inning. Brock and Julian Javier hit the left-hander's first two serves for singles and one out later Cepeda singled in a run. Mike Shannon singled off reliever Bob Shaw for a run and Tim McCarver doubled in the third run.

The Cubs nearly tied the game in the ninth when, with two out, Al Spangler lined a pinch single that drove in Ernie Banks who had singled.

But when Ted Savage, on base when he was hit by a pitch, tried to score from first he was cut down on a throw from Bob Tolan that was relayed to the plate by Julian Javier for the final infield out before Cepeda got his second RBI of the game with a fly to deep center.

Ray Washburn picked up his seventh victory, spreading out six hits over eight innings. He worked out of trouble in the third when Don Kessinger and Glenn Beckert singled with two out. The right-hander then got Billy Williams on a soft grounder.

Chicago scored off Washburn with two out in the sixth. Ron Santo singled and Banks tripled. Clarence Jones singled in Banks with the second run and sliced the Cardinal lead in half.

Braves-Reds

ATLANTA (AP) — Pat Jarvis pitched a two-hitter last night as the Atlanta Braves defeated Cincinnati 4-0 and moved into third place in the National League.

It was the 11th victory of the season for Jarvis who has lost three games. The loss was charged to rookie right-hander Gary Nolan, 8-3, who gave up just five hits.

The Braves' only run came in the fifth just before a 44-minute rain delay when Denis Menke opened with a triple and scored on a single by Woody Woodward that bounced over the head of third baseman Chico Ruiz.

The first Cincinnati hit came in the fifth inning when Lee May singled with one out, but was later thrown out attempting to steal second as Don Pavlech struck out.

Both Jarvis and Nolan had pitched hitless baseball through three innings until Rico Carty's single to left ruined Nolan's bid in the fourth inning. The loss dropped Cincinnati into fourth place.

ChiSox-Indians

CHICAGO (AP) — J. C. Martin hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning, giving the Chicago White Sox a 3-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the first game of a double-header last night.

(See Late Game for result of nightcap.)

Sam McDowell, 7-9, walked Tommie Agee opening the ninth. Then after Ron Hansen fouled out attempting to bunt, Martin connected for the game winning shot.

Martin entered the game in the eighth inning when catcher Gerry McNertney injured his finger.

Hoyle Wilhelm, who took over in the top of the ninth, picked up his fifth victory against one loss.

McDowell had the Sox handcuffed on three hits and held a 1-0 lead going into the eighth when pinch hitter Don Buford walked and Walt Williams beat out a bunt single.

McDowell retired the next two batters before Pete Ward singled home the tying run. Cleveland scored its first run in the third inning when Max Alvis delivered a run-scoring double with two out.

Philis-Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Rich Allen drove in four runs with a homer, a double, and two singles last night as Philadelphia crushed Houston 12-7.

Allen also scored three times and stole two bases.

Allen's homer in the fifth, his 13th of the season, broke a 1-1 tie and the Phils scored six times in the seventh with Allen driving in two with a double and pitcher Jim Bunning knocking in a pair with a single.

Cookie Rojas had a triple and three singles in the Phillies' 15-hit attack and Bobby Wine had two runs batted in with a double and two singles.

Bunning, 10-8, was the winner, giving up six unearned runs on four Philadelphia errors.

The Astros' big inning was the seventh when they struck for four runs after Tony Taylor fumbled a grounder to open the gates. Jackie Brandt doubled in two runs in the inning.

The Twins got their run in the first when Harmon Killebrew smacked his 28th homer—tops in the majors—off southpaw Al Downing.

The game will be replayed as part of a two-night doubleheader, Aug. 18.

A's-Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ken Harrelson homered in the first game and drove in the deciding runs in the nightcap last night, leading Kansas City to a doubleheader sweep over Washington 5-1 and 6-5.

Mike Hersherberger hit a three-run inside-the-park homer in the opener as the Athletics cooled off the rampaging Senators who had won 12 of their last 15 games.

Harrelson's two-run single in the fifth inning of the second game drove in Campy Campaneris and Joe Nosske, who singled ahead of him. It was one of three hits for Nosske, who had four for the night.

Frank Howard batted in a pair of runs for the Senators with his 25th homer, his first in 16 days, and a run-scoring single. Howard played first base for the first time in the American League in the ninth inning of the nightcap.

Chuck Dobson was the winner with help from Jack Aker and Tony Pierce and Diego Segura.

In the ninth inning with two out, Athletics' manager Alvin Dark moved second baseman Ozzie Chavez to right field giving Kansas City four outfielders to face Howard.

Howard, however, struck out, ending the game.

In the opener, Hersherberger's homer in the first inning hopped over Fred Valentine's glove in centerfield allowing the Kansas City rightfielder to score behind Campaneris.

Jim Hunter evened his record at 9-9, retiring 11 Senators in a row at one point.

CHILE WINS DAY'S ONLY GOLD MEDAL

Ashe, Yank Tankmen Set Pace at 2nd Day Pan-Am

By TED SMITHS
AP Sports Editor
WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — Arthur Ashe, the Davis Cup tennis ace from Richmond, Va., and a half dozen superb Yankee swimmers and divers set a record-smashing pace for the United States in the second day of Pan-American Games competition yesterday, but the only gold medal of the widespread competition went to Chile.

Led by Major Guillermo Esquivella, Chile won the equestrian team event in dressage with the United States second and Canada third.

Pan-American Games records were set in swimming preliminary heats as follows:

—Women's 200 meter free style: Pamela Kruse, Pompano Beach, Fla., 2:15.7. The old record was 2:17.5 set by Robyn Johnson of the United States at the games in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1963, Marion Lay, 2:16.4, and Angela Coughlin 2:17.3, both Canadians also bettered the record.

—Men's 100 meter freestyle: Zachary Zorn, Buena Park, Calif., 1:53.8. The old record was 1:54.7 set by Steve Clark of the United States at the same meet in Brazil.

Two Yankee divers, Sue Gos-sick, Tarzana, Calif., and Air Force Lt. Micki King, Ann Arbor, Mich., finished one-two in preliminary diving competition. In addition, Pokey Watson, Portola Valley, Calif., qualified for the finals in the women's 200 with 216.8, as did Donald Havens, Granada Hills, Calif., with 256.6 in the men's event.

Miss Kruse achieved her remarkable time despite the fact she missed her turn at 150 meters and had to go back.

In the dressage event the top three team riders will ride off for the individual crown Wednesday—Major Esquivella, with 787 points; Mrs. Tyra Downton, Atherton, Calif., 755; and Capt. Patricio Escudero, Chile, 720.

After two days of competition, the United States had two gold medals and one silver, with Cuba and Mexico each holding one silver, in addition to Chile's gold in equestrian.

Ashe started slowly but finally unleashed his powerful service to overcome Patricio Rodriguez of Chile 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6 in a first round men's singles match.

Ashe is favored to win the title even as the United States, already possessing two gold medals from individual and team free pistol competition, is expected to dominate the games. After the first four dives in the women's 3-meter springboard Miss Cosstick piled up an impressive total of 252.75 points closely followed by Lt. King, an Air Force officer, with 250.35, Cathy McDonald of Canada was in third place with 244.05 with the other four girls in the field strung far behind.

Mary Peppeler of Rolling Hills Estate, Calif., starred as the United States, opening its defense of the women's volleyball crown won at the last games four years ago in Sao Paulo.

Jimmy Foxx Eulogized At Funeral

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"I've got lots of memories of Jimmy. With that guy, every day was a memory."

It was Rubie Walberg talking. He was a teammate of Jimmy Foxx, one of baseball's greatest home run hitters, when Connie Mack's old Philadelphia Athletics dominated the American League in the early 1930s.

And the gray-haired old southpaw pitcher was here to pay his last respects to Foxx at services in a flower-bedecked funeral chapel packed with friends of the Hall of Fame star.

Foxx, who retired in 1945 after hitting 534 major league home runs, choked to death Friday while having dinner at the home of his brother, Sam. He was 59.

"I remember one day in Chicago," Walberg said, "Jimmy had been hurt and he was on the bench. But he came on in the ninth as a pinch hitter and won the game with a line drive into the center field stands.

"But there were a lot of other days like that. I was with Jimmy for 13 years."

Also among the mourners was Connie Mack Jr., tall and lean like his father, who flew in for the services from his home at Fort Myers on the Florida west coast.

"We'll miss Jimmy," said Mack, who dropped out of baseball in 1950. "He was such a likeable guy. He always had a smile and a pat on the back for everybody."

"He was a great competitor but it was impossible to make him lose his temper. He was never thrown out of a ball game in his life."

"He gave me one of my greatest thrills in 1930, when we were in St. Louis for the World Series. He belted one of the longest home runs ever hit in Sportsman's Park and it was the turning point in the series. We went on to win it in six games."

Among the pallbearers was Max Carey, former Pittsburgh and Brooklyn infielder. With Foxx and Ted Williams, Carey was one of three Hall of Famers in the Old Timers Professional Baseball Association of Greater Miami.

Williams sent regrets from Canada for inability to attend the funeral.

The eulogy delivered by the Rev. Jiles Kirkland, pastor of the First Methodist Church of South Miami, was brief.

"His feats and exploits on the baseball diamond are too well known to mention, too many to enumerate," he said. "His name held something of magic to me."

Foxx was buried in Flagler Memorial Cemetery.

At the time of his retirement, Foxx trailed only Babe Ruth in home runs. Later, he dropped to third place behind Willie Mays.

The qualifying races will be run at 6 p.m. with the heats, semis, consi and 25-lap features run at 7:30. Admission is only $1.00 for the full show or ten events.

As roll-overs and fires highlight last week's oval program, possibly so will tonight's.

Atlanta QB Laughs, Sees Better Season

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — Randy Johnson, heading confidently into his sophomore season with the Atlanta Falcons, doesn't mind admitting now that he was "fascinated to death most of the time" as a rookie quarterback last year.

The slender, sandy-haired Texan laughed yesterday about some of his National Football League misadventures in 1966, including an incident in which he was so rattled he lined up behind a guard to take the snap from center.

"I didn't think it was so funny then, however," Johnson said while relaxing between drills by the Falcons at this East Tennessee city.

"I never was sure whether the thumping in my heart and that feeling in my stomach was fear or pride," Johnson added. "But it's a lot different now."

"I'm not a rookie any more, and I think the players respect me. Last year I know it was hard for some of the veterans we had to come up to me and ask for advice. But now I believe they feel they are coming to another old hand."

"Last year I was just a kid from a little college, and a lot of people, when they heard I was the first Negro quarterback in pro football."

"Once against the Cleveland Browns, when we were really getting beat," Johnson said, "Bill Glass hit me so hard I didn't know what was happening. I called a play and went up

NEW YORK — Over a cup of coffee in the soothing, air-conditioned comfort of the softly lit and well-upholstered press room at Shea Stadium, three former baseball players were having a relaxed conversation the other day.

One of them was Ralph Kiner, one-time boy slugger, National League home run champion and minor-league general manager, who settled down six years ago to a stable career as one of the New York Met broadcasters.

Another was Tom Ferrick, once a first-rate relief pitcher for the New York Yankees and Washington Senators, subsequently a pitching coach, currently a scout and instructor for the Kansas City Athletics.

The third was Moe Berg, a Princeton man who knows more languages than most players know pitches, and who spent his athletic years as a catcher in the American League in the 1920s and 1930s.

Kiner, understandably, sees the baseball world through a hitter's eyes. He is, after all, author of the well-known observation that "home run hitters drive Cadillac's." Ferrick, always concerned with foiling people like Kiner, has the opposite viewpoint, naturally enough. And Berg qualifies as a neutral, since he can be considered, in two senses, the Joe Garagiola of his day: he hit just about as well as Garagiola, and he was just as verbal.

"Players always did miss signs," Kiner was saying, "and I guess they always will."

"I remember once when I was with Washington," said Berg. "Walter Johnson was the manager and Joe Judge was our first baseman. Our hit-and-run sign was flesh on flesh—you know, rub your face with your hand, or clap hands, or something like that. And, of course, the rule was that you had to answer it. Well, I was batting and I gave it, and Judge didn't answer, and after the inning Johnson called him aside."

"Why didn't you give the answer?" he demanded.

"I gave it, Walter, I gave it," Judge assured him with great feeling. "I did this..."

And Berg showed how Judge had rubbed his right thumb and forefinger together, with his hand at his side.

"They don't let players give their own hit and run signs any more," Kiner observed.

"They don't?" Berg was amazed.

"No sir, the manager always calls it now. They keep much greater control of the game now than they used to."

"One thing that makes it tougher now," said Ferrick, "is that everyone throws more breaking pitches on 2-0 and 3-1 counts. It's harder to get set for a pitch."

Getting set, everyone agreed, was the big thing for hitters, especially power hitters.

"Remember Dino Restelli?" asked Kiner.

They certainly did. In 1949, for part of a season, Restelli was the hottest home run hitter in the National League. He was a rookie with the Pittsburgh Pirates, batting immediately ahead of Kiner, a right-handed batter who wore glasses.

"This is how hot he was," said Kiner. "They were trying to walk him intentionally one time, and he swung anyhow and hit the fence for a double. But this time, he was going to face Ewell Blackwell for the first time."

Kiner didn't have to describe Blackwell. Everyone knew how that right-handed, cross-fire motion, with a blazing pitch bearing in, affected right-handed hitters.

"We all hated to go up against him," Kiner recalled, "and if I ever wanted to dig a hole with my spikes, I made sure he was looking at the outfield while I did it."

"He was one of those who would knock down his own mother," said Ferrick, "and then say 'Well, mother is a pretty good hitter.'"

"Anyhow, Restelli asked me what Blackwell threw," Kiner continued, "and I told him to forget it, because he couldn't imagine it until he saw for himself. Now he goes to bat and I'm kneeling in the on-deck circle."

"Blackwell whips one by, strike one. He fires another one. Strike two."

"Now Restelli steps out of the box. He takes out this big red bandana he had in his hip pocket, and carefully cleans his glasses. He steps back in and takes his time about digging in with the rear foot. And then he looks out at Blackwell, sticks out his left hand toward him, and flips the fingers in, like this—as if to say, O.K., throw it."

Kiner winced at the memory.

"I almost couldn't look," he said. "Blackwell hit him right here—on the point of the shoulders. His hot streak ended soon after that and he never did have another year in the majors."

They contemplated the story. Kiner seemed regretful. Ferrick seemed to approve. Berg seemed, as always, philosophical. It's all in the point of view.

Riots Probe Urged ByBothGOP,Demos

By JOHN HERBERS
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Republicans and Democratic leaders in Congress called yesterday for the creation of a special committee to investigate riots and other civil disorder.

The riots in Detroit and other cities dominated debate and conversations in both houses of Congress, in Capitol corridors and in many committee meetings.

The overriding feeling was that the federal government must act in some manner, but there was sharp division of opinion as to what should be done. Reaction ranged from a proposal by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., that riots be "put down with brutal force" and adult looters "shot on the spot," to renewed pleas for increased federal aid to impoverished neighborhoods.

Car Insurance Bill Tied to Rate Hikes

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Chamber of Commerce warned yesterday that a bill aimed at preventing automobile insurance companies from arbitrarily terminating policies would result in a rate increase for "safe, responsible drivers."

The remark was contained in a policy statement delivered at a House Insurance Committee hearing by E. Wayne Covert, chairman of the chamber's insurance committee. The hearing was held to discuss five auto insurance measures before the legislature.

Covert also said that the measure, House Bill 1052, which is considered the strongest of the five measures, would restrict the amount of insurance available to motorists and also might threaten the solvency of companies.

However, another witness, Raymond Nell, who represented the American Association of Retired People, said his organization gave its "ardent support" to the bill and that the insurance companies would be able to adjust to it. The State Insurance Department has also said that the bill would not adversely affect Pennsylvania's insurance industry.

Nell, who is 76, said "hundreds of thousands" of older men depended on their cars to get to work but often they had difficulty getting insurance because of their age. Bill 1052 would prohibit companies from canceling or refusing to renew private auto policies solely because of age, residence, color, creed, national origin, ancestry, or occupation.

It would also prohibit com-

Soviet Pressure is Blasted by Rumania

By RICHARD EDER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BUCHAREST — Premier Ion George Maurer of Rumania strongly attacked yesterday the use of interference and pressures between the world's Communist countries.

Referring unmistakably to the Soviet Union, Maurer went far beyond a theoretical denunciation of such practices, and suggested that they were in fact taking place, saying that it was not unnatural that there should be differences among the Communist parties, he continued: "Unnatural is the fact that methods and practices in contradiction with the standards of equal rights and noninterference in internal affairs, standards deriving from the very nature of Socialist internationalism, should occur in the relationships between the Socialist countries."

Maurer's words, delivered at the end of a two-day foreign policy review at the Rumanian National Assembly, struck a

Unique Law Allows "No" Vote on LBJ in Wisconsin

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
MADISON, Wis. — Gov. Warren P. Knowles signed yesterday a new presidential primary law making Wisconsin the first full-scale testing ground for 1968 candidates.

"Wisconsin voters will have the opportunity to express their preferences in a direct way," the Republican governor said at the signing ceremony, "since the names of all recognized potential candidates for the office of President will be placed on the primary ballot."

Also placed on the ballot will be a line—unique for American primaries—on which citizens may vote "no" on the candidate or candidates listed, in the state's primary on April 2, 1968.

A campaign for a "No" vote against President Johnson, who may be unopposed otherwise on the Democratic ballot, is already being discussed.

Most observers doubt that a "No" drive would generate enough support to deny the President a pledged Wisconsin delegation to the Democratic Na-spot," to renewed pleas for increased federal aid to impoverished neighborhoods. The Republican leadership introduced resolutions in both houses calling for a joint congressional committee that would look for both the underlying causes of despair in the nation's Negro ghettos and for subversive influences suspected of sparking violence.

Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic majority leader, said he would support a congressional investigation, but would prefer that such a study be conducted by a blue-ribbon commission appointed by President Johnson. Mansfield told reporters he did not want any investigation to become a "political football."

panies from refusing to sell a new policy to a person solely for the same reasons. In addition, it would require a company to give a policyholder 60 days' notice of its intention to cancel or not renew and the reasons for the action. The policyholder could then appeal to the insurance commissioner, who would be empowered to uphold or overrule the company.

Both Covert and a third witness, Gler Sullivan, retired vice president of the State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., stressed that they were not opposed to the objectives of 1052 but that they believed it would not accomplish its aims. They recommended instead that the legislature pass a rider on the five measures, House Bill 1306. The bill deals only with the cancellation of policies. Under it, insurance companies could cancel only on specific reasons.

These reasons would include failing to pay the premium on the policy, obtaining the policy through misrepresentation, violating a condition of the policy, and use of alcoholic beverages to excess. Covert said Bill 1052 would force companies to accept an "ever increasing number" of policyholders who are "high risks."

Thus, he said, would restrict the insurance market because the companies would become "very cautious about accepting any new business." "It would also increase the cost of insurance to safe, responsible drivers because they would be subsidizing the high risk drivers," he said.

note of sharp defiance toward the Soviet Union. This contrasted with more conciliatory language used Monday by Nicolae Ceausescu, general secretary of the Rumanian Communist Party.

The implication that the Soviet Union was putting pressure upon countries that follow independent policies was one of the most serious statements yet made by the Rumanians in the course of their growing differences with Moscow.

No instance was given by the premier of what constituted the interference. The accusation inevitably will revive speculation in diplomatic circles over rumors of economic pressure by the Soviet Union against Rumania. There also had been rumors of possible Soviet efforts to create divisions in the Rumanian Communist Party.

Maurer also delivered the guarded endorsement of improved relations with the United States that has been made at the session.

Some, however, feel the "No's" might actually win in the Second Congressional District, centered on Madison where anti-administration sentiment on the war in Vietnam is strongest. Such an outcome would send two unpledged delegates to the convention from the second district.

Fidel Castro Wants
To Change His Name

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fidel Castro is thinking of changing his name. A Mexican salesman who does not wear a beard, Castro said his name causes him trouble. Recently he arrived in Mexico City from the United States and had lost his passport. He spent more than three hours explaining he had nothing to do with Cuba or the Cuban prime minister of the same name.

On the Senate floor, he defended President Johnson against growing Republican charges that the President was partly to blame for racial rioting that has erupted in a number of cities this summer.

Tater in the day, two Democratic senators, Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, introduced a bill that would have the President appoint a commission composed of nine members representing the legislative, executive and judicial branches and the state and municipal governments.

The commission would be requested to report back to Congress within one month of its formation with recommendations as to how the federal government can both put down rioting and deal with its root causes. A fuller report would be required within six months.

Much of the heat for yesterday's debate was supplied by a statement issued Monday by the Republican Coordinating Committee, the party's highest policy-making body. That report accused President Johnson of inadequate leadership in the area of public order and race relations and suggested that much of the rioting was the result of an organized conspiracy.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the Democratic leader in the House, replied that the GOP "attempt to put on the President responsibility for this terrible rioting is irresponsible and ridiculous."

Mansfield said that if the Republicans wanted to stop riots they should give prompt approval to President Johnson's proposals for combating crime and poverty and controlling the sale of guns.

Thus debate brought into sharp focus the deep division that exists within the Congress and in the country as to the primary reason for rioting and looting. Administration Democrats have taken the position that the riots are largely spontaneous outbursts by deprived people who have drifted into despair as the rest of the nation has prospered. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., spoke from this point of view when he appeared yesterday before the Committee on Banking and Currency in behalf of his slum housing program.

He compared the riots to the "Bonus Army" of World War I veterans that descended on Washington 35 years ago this week seeking food and clothing for their families. "Today, the army of the dispossessed and disenchanted sits, not just in Washington, but in every major city, in every region and section of the country," he said.

On the other hand, the Republican leadership and a number of Democrats consider the rioting primarily a law enforcement problem, a loss of respect for authority that must be re-instated.

This view was espoused by Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate minority leader, who sponsored the bill for a congressional investigation. Dirksen told reporters he was not satisfied with an investigation proposed by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., which would look primarily to what could be done to correct the social injustices that contribute to violence.

"I want the committee to see if there is a touch of red blood" the riots, Dirksen said. "I want to find out where they are manufacturing these gasoline bombs and how they are being distributed."

Thus, the Republican resolution introduced yesterday called for a joint select committee to study not only the root causes of riots and the adequacy of state police to deal with them but evidence that would indicate the existence of a conspiracy to provoke civil disorders and evidence which may indicate that such civil disorders have been or may be organized, instigated, or encouraged by any Communist or other subversive organization.

On the Senate floor, he defended President Johnson against growing Republican charges that the President was partly to blame for racial rioting that has erupted in a number of cities this summer.

Tater in the day, two Democratic senators, Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, introduced a bill that would have the President appoint a commission composed of nine members representing the legislative, executive and judicial branches and the state and municipal governments.

The commission would be requested to report back to Congress within one month of its formation with recommendations as to how the federal government can both put down rioting and deal with its root causes. A fuller report would be required within six months.

Much of the heat for yesterday's debate was supplied by a statement issued Monday by the Republican Coordinating Committee, the party's highest policy-making body. That report accused President Johnson of inadequate leadership in the area of public order and race relations and suggested that much of the rioting was the result of an organized conspiracy.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, the Democratic leader in the House, replied that the GOP "attempt to put on the President responsibility for this terrible rioting is irresponsible and ridiculous."

Mansfield said that if the Republicans wanted to stop riots they should give prompt approval to President Johnson's proposals for combating crime and poverty and controlling the sale of guns.

Thus debate brought into sharp focus the deep division that exists within the Congress and in the country as to the primary reason for rioting and looting. Administration Democrats have taken the position that the riots are largely spontaneous outbursts by deprived people who have drifted into despair as the rest of the nation has prospered. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., spoke from this point of view when he appeared yesterday before the Committee on Banking and Currency in behalf of his slum housing program.

He compared the riots to the "Bonus Army" of World War I veterans that descended on Washington 35 years ago this week seeking food and clothing for their families. "Today, the army of the dispossessed and disenchanted sits, not just in Washington, but in every major city, in every region and section of the country," he said.

On the other hand, the Republican leadership and a number of Democrats consider the rioting primarily a law enforcement problem, a loss of respect for authority that must be re-instated.

This view was espoused by Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate minority leader, who sponsored the bill for a congressional investigation. Dirksen told reporters he was not satisfied with an investigation proposed by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., which would look primarily to what could be done to correct the social injustices that contribute to violence.

"I want the committee to see if there is a touch of red blood" the riots, Dirksen said. "I want to find out where they are manufacturing these gasoline bombs and how they are being distributed."

Thus, the Republican resolution introduced yesterday called for a joint select committee to study not only the root causes of riots and the adequacy of state police to deal with them but evidence that would indicate the existence of a conspiracy to provoke civil disorders and evidence which may indicate that such civil disorders have been or may be organized, instigated, or encouraged by any Communist or other subversive organization.

'Murder' is Charge Against Five GI's

By BERNARD WEINRAUB
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
ANKHE, South Vietnam — The fatal shooting of a Viet Cong suspect has led to court-martial charges against two United States Army officers and three enlisted men.

The trials of the five soldiers, in a steaming half-empty room in Anke, 240 miles northeast of Saigon, have aroused intense interest among American military officials in Vietnam.

The lawyers for the three enlisted men have argued that the soldiers were simply following orders and that any guilt in the case lies with the officers. "Let's face it, gentlemen, they tried generals, businessmen, doctors and well-educated people at the Nuremberg trials," one of the lawyers, Capt. Stephen Barasch of Yonkers, N.Y., said. "They never tried a private first class."

So far, two of the enlisted men have been found guilty. One was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and received a sentence of one year at hard labor. The other received a four-year sentence on a charge of unpremeditated murder.

All five defendants — who are being tried separately over a period of several weeks — were charged with premeditated murder, which carries a maximum penalty of death. However, their commanding officer, Maj. Gen. John J. Tolson of the First Cavalry Division (airmobile), ordered that the maximum punishment in the case be life imprisonment.

The Army charges that Capt. Paul G. Ogg, commander of Company C, First Battalion, Eight Infantry, ordered the killing of 42-year-old Nguyen Chi, a peasant picked up on April 4 by the company's third platoon. The incident occurred, the army says, near the village of Canhu, about 42 miles north of Anke, in a farm area where the Viet Cong is strong.

Witnesses from Company C testified yesterday that the peasant was taken as a suspect while the company made a sweep near the village. Shortly afterward, he was tied behind his back and a call was made for a helicopter. The helicopter never arrived.

Several hours later, the company began setting up camp for the night. At this point, First Lt. John L. Patrick, the platoon leader, radioed Capt. Ogg, who was about two miles away. "The lieutenant said, 'We still have the Vietnamese prisoner,'" Garcia said he wasn't sure whether Capt. Ogg had then answered "Kill him" or "Drive on."

Another witness, Sgt. James W. Southerland of the third platoon, said he distinctly heard the captain say "Drive on." Southerland added: "It meant to kill the Gook."

"I heard two words over that radio," said Sp-5 Harold Crawford, "it was 'Kill him,' or 'Shoot him.'"

The prosecution said that Garcia grabbed the suspect, followed by Sgt. 1st Lt. Walter Griffin and Pfc. David Woods. Garcia carried a .45-cal. pistol. The other two had automatic rifles. As the three soldiers and the prisoner walked 75 yards down a hill, they were apparently watched by more than a dozen men from the platoon.

"In my mind, I knew it was wrong," said one witness, Sp-4 David Vasquez. "I turned away when I heard the shots. I was confused."

"Why didn't you try to stop it?" asked one of the defense attorneys for Sergeant Griffin. "There was an officer around and a Sergeant present. They had more rank on me," Vasquez replied.

There are conflicting stories of who fired at and killed the prisoner. In effect, each of the three enlisted men said the other two did the killing.

Neither Captain Ogg nor Lieutenant Patrick have testified so far. Captain Ogg's trial is expected to begin today.

Monday, Private Woods, who is from Lawton, Okla., and is 20 years old, the youngest and lowest ranking defendant, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter. He was sentenced to one year at hard labor, reduced in rank to recruit and ordered to forfeit all his army pay and allowances for a year.

Sergeant Griffin, a winner of the Bronze Star and Purple Heart in Vietnam, was tried yesterday. A decision by the 10-man military panel, composed of officers and enlisted men, is expected this morning.

County's Refund Set at $41,570

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — Payment of $41,570.65 has been approved for Warren County by the State Department of Revenue as the county's share of an $8.3 million refund to counties throughout the state from liquid fuels tax collections for the six-month period ending June 1. The department said the money must be spent by the county commissioners within the corporate limits of the county for construction, improvement and maintenance of county roads and bridges. The funds are allocated to townships and boroughs within the county at the discretion of the commissioners — not the Department of Revenue. In December the county received $51,673.69 in liquid fuels tax refunds covering the second half of 1966. As a point of comparison with the $41,570.65 six-month payment that has just been approved, Warren County for the comparable first half period of 1966 received $40,559.68, and for the same period in 1965, the refund amounted to $39,206.84. The statewide allocation of $8,308,230 is $2,019,175 lower than the preceding six-month period but $202,051 above the amount returned during the corresponding period a year ago.

Local Young GOP To Hear Romney At Chautauqua

An active group of Young Republicans in Warren County are in the midst of plans to add interested young men and women to their organization. Tom Africa, chairman, has called a meeting of the executive board at 9 p.m. today to complete final arrangements for the organizations first event since its open forum for candidates seeking office in the May primary election. Governor George Romney of Michigan, one of the leading contenders to lead the Republicans back to the presidency in 1968, is scheduled for an appearance at Chautauqua on Friday, August 8. Warren's Young Republicans plan to sponsor buses from here to Chautauqua to hear Romney provided enough interest is expressed. Since there will be no admission charged for Romney's appearance, a $2 per person fee is expected. Additional details will be forthcoming, according to James Gibson, publicity chairman.

$2,000 Stolen From Dairy in Titusville Area

TITUSVILLE — Approximately $2,000 in cash and checks was stolen in a safe burglary Saturday night at Sanda Dairy Inc. on Route 27 west of Titusville. State police of the Meadville substation, who are investigating the break-in, said the theft occurred sometime between 10 p. m. Saturday and 8:30 a. m. Sunday when dairy manager Clarence Staub arrived at the building. Entry was apparently gained through a window. After the burglars were inside they put a 700-pound safe on a dolly and moved it out of the building and into a waiting vehicle. The safe was two and a half feet high and 20 inches in depth. It contained about $1,034 in cash and $977 in checks.

Dr. F. A. Castano Gets Commendation

The Department of the Army has announced that Dr. Francis A. Castano has been awarded the Army commendation medal for meritorious service in Europe from 1965 to July 1967. The citation reads in part: "Captain Castano repeatedly demonstrated his ability as an instructor and lecturer in pedodontics. The exceptional manner in which he provided dental care and treatment to his patients in his clinic aided the unit immensely. His unrelenting dedication to duty, his integrity and the high personal example set earned him the respect and admiration of his associates." Dr. Castano was graduated from University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine in 1963. From 1963-1965 he attended the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine and was a pediatric dentist resident at Childrens Hospital in Philadelphia. Upon entering the army he was appointed as consultant in children's dentistry for the army's European command. Dr. Castano will be joining the staff of Warren Dental Arts as a children's dentist on August 1. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gorfida of Warren.

Aliquippa Man Narrowly Escapes Death

What could have resulted in a fatal head-on collision Monday evening proved to be a narrow escape, according to State police Cpl. William F. Kattner of the Warren substation. Kattner said that at 6:15 p.m. a car driven by Russell Lloyd Silver, 623 Sohn st., Aliquippa, Pa., traveling east on Route 6 went out of control while negotiating the Lillypond curve at the railroad grade crossing at a high rate of speed. Police said the Silver vehicle careened into the westbound lane, just missed hitting a westbound car, traveled back into the eastbound lane, skidded sideways across the berm and over an embankment. According to Kattner skid marks measured 180 feet. There were no injuries and no apparent damage to the Silver car. The investigation is being continued.

THREE BOARD MEMBERS ELECTED

General Hospital Names Crossett as President

William F. Crossett, head of a trucking firm and a former burgess of Warren borough for eight years, yesterday was named president of the Warren General Hospital board of directors. Named to the board as newly elected members were Jacob Levinson, co-owner of Levinson's Store; Walter S. Rogers, president of Warren Concrete Products; and A. B. Chlaromonte, a department supervisor at New Process Co. Crossett is head of William F. Crossett, Inc., a trucking firm which deals in liquid petroleum traffic in three states and Canada. He has served as an officer of the Pennsylvania Truck Assn., including a term as president from 1948 to 1950. He was burgess of Warren from January of 1946 through 1953. He had never held political office prior to that time. At the present time, he is serving the community as chairman of the Cemetery Authority and chairman of the Police Pension Fund. He has been on the board of directors of the Warren National Bank for 10 years.

The annual meeting was held yesterday at the hospital. In its annual report to the community, published Monday as a supplement to the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer, Warren General Hospital noted a successful past year and noted that it would continue to be "an above-average hospital for the community it serves." The report was signed by Crossett as president and by Robert M. Kinney, the administrator of the hospital.

Reduced Rates Announced by Penna. Electric

A reduced rate, for 174, of Pennsylvania Electric Company's "all electric" commercial and industrial customer became effective last week. According to a news release for the Pennsylvania Electric Company, the lower rate, filed in May with the Pennsylvania Public Utility commission affects business, industries and institutions that use electricity as the sole source of energy for all purposes, including heating. The new rate will amount to a savings of more than $20,000 annually to business- and industrial customers. This brings to approximately $7 million the annual savings realized by all classifications of Penelec customers from rate cuts during the past seven years. Although the new rate will mean a decrease of about 6.5 per cent in Penelec's revenues from the affected customers, the action is designed to encourage Penelec's business and industrial customers to convert space conditioning systems to electric heating and air conditioning in existing buildings or install all-electric systems in new structures. It will also eliminate the necessity for new electric heating customers to install separate circuits and meters for heating, resulting in subsequent savings in construction cost.

Fire Guts Home Of Clyde Baldwin

Fire completely gutted the home of Clyde Baldwin on Route 6 in Irvine Monday afternoon. Youngsville Fire Chief Lee Sider said the fire started in a back room off the kitchen when one of Baldwin's younger sons was filling the lawn mower with gasoline and fumes reached the hot water tank only a few feet away. The explosion, Sider said, set the house ablaze. Firemen reported the boy was burned on the legs but not seriously. Sider stated damage to the two-story frame structure was approximately $2,500 and the contents, all of which were lost, were valued at $5,000. Contents were not insured and it is not yet known if the structure was insured by the owner Margaret Gromley who resides in Columbus, Ohio. Fire broke out at 12:15 p.m. and by 2:45 the home was completely destroyed. Fifteen Youngsville volunteer firemen fought the blaze along with ten firefighters from Starbrick. Four fire trucks were on the scene. Fire officials said yesterday that lightning caused the roaring fire that leveled the Merrill Livezey barn on the Sugar Grove-Lander rd. Monday night. The Livezey home was scorched but saved, along with a nearby slaughter house. Fire departments from Sugar Grove, Lander, Russell and Busti, N. Y., converged on the scene. Lander Fire Chief William Schumann was in charge at the blaze for 13 hours while other departments left when no longer needed. One firefighter, Bob Dalrymple, suffered a lacerated finger during the operation. Monday was the regular meeting of the Lander Volunteer Fire Department. The session was postponed until next Monday.

Boy, 12, Hurt; Car Hits Bike

A 12-year-old Warren youth suffered injuries yesterday morning when he was struck by a car at 9:35 while riding his bicycle on Yankee Bush rd. State police of the Warren substation said Robert Lynn Sleeman of 1140 Yankee Bush rd. darted from the south berm onto the roadway where he was struck by an eastbound car operated by Ronald C. Snapp, 18, RD 3, Spartansburg. Police said the boy was knocked to the pavement. Young Sleeman was taken to Warren General Hospital by his mother where x-rays were taken of his left arm and ankle.

Near Bear Lake

State police of the Corry substation said a car crash near Bear Lake late Friday evening was caused when the driver, Mrs. Greg Paskowski, 26, of Irvington, N.J. lost control of her car when it hit a slippery spot on the highway. The vehicle careened off one side of the road and then the other before striking a fence. She was admitted to Corry Memorial Hospital and released Sunday.

Missed a Skunk; Three Cars Junk

CORRY — Drivers usually experience their quickest reaction when a skunk starts across a road in front of their cars. A moment's hesitation may mean one's car will be bathed with the stench of skunk musk for some time. Saturday night on West Smith street that's what happened. A skunk ambled across the street into the path of a car and an unidentified driver reacted typically. He slammed on his brakes. The skunk got away, but three cars behind the skunk dodger were not so fortunate. A car driven by Clinton E. Smith of Lawrence Park was following. Smith stopped. Behind the Smith car was one driven by Merle Lyon, RD 1, Pittsfield, Lyon stopped. Traveling behind Lyon was a car driven by John M. Haniak, RD 1, Columbus. Haniak didn't stop in time. The Haniak car struck the Lyon car which rammed into the Smith car. Total damage was $975. No one was hurt — especially the skunk.

Three Attacked At Forest Park

WESTFIELD, N. Y. — Chautauqua County sheriff's deputies are investigating an attack early Monday on three youths at a private beach at Forest Park, a mile west of Barcelona on Lake Erie. Members of the family who had rented a cottage at Forest Park said their son and two companions who were guests, were sitting around a campfire and preparing to get into sleeping bags when the attack occurred. The boys said they recognized one of the youths as one who had earlier asked for a flashlight and assistance in helping him find his lost glasses. The youths had helped him at the time. The family said the boys were struck about the face. One was hit in the head with a flashlight and another with a shoe. The boys also said they were threatened with a knife. One got away and fled to the cottage where authorities were called. By the time they reached the scene the assailants had disappeared. The boys were x-rayed at Westfield Memorial Hospital and received first aid after the attack which took place about 1:30 a. m. Monday.

Dunmore Man Charged With Illegal Entry

A Dunmore, Pa. man is in Warren County jail in lieu of $500 bail bond. Walter Burger was charged with unlawful entry before Peace Justice Fred Berry of Coneyango Township yesterday afternoon. State police trooper Richard DeSimone of the Warren substation who investigated with Coneyango township police officer James Tridico said the charge was filed after Burger entered the home of Mrs. Merton Winner at 2760 Pennsylvania ave. W. ext. shortly before 2 p. m. yesterday and picked up her purse containing about $33 in cash. Mrs. Winner was nearing her residence when she saw the man leaving the premises. Police are continuing their investigation.

Hold Corry Boy

A 15-year-old Corry boy was picked up in Meadville Monday by officers from the Erie County juvenile probation of ice and returned to Erie for court action in a stolen car case. The car was stolen July 14 from the Pennsylvania Bank & Trust Co. in Titusville. It was owned by John Lowther of RD 1, Centerville. Meadville police chief Jack Holt said the boy admitted the theft while being questioned.

Corry Police Have Suspect In Stabbing

State police of the Corry substation Monday night said they have a suspect in connection with the stabbing of a Titusville area man late Saturday night at the Ted and Marge Tavern just outside Centerville. James Titus of RD 1, Titusville, was stabbed by one of three men who he said started an argument with him. He was stabbed in the chest and stomach. Following the incident, Titus was taken to Titusville Hospital and treated in the emergency room. The three men involved in the fight fled in a car toward Titusville.

President De Gaulle has a new job on his hands, and it's one that may not please him as time goes on. He has decided to become the liberator of Quebec, carrying the banner of separatism for the French-speaking segment of that province's population. He fired the first verbal shot this week in an appearance unwittingly arranged by the Canadian officials, who thought it might be a nice thing to have him around for Expo 67. Needless to say, the Canadians in charge of things are a little concerned about his remarks and the protests and demonstrations which followed. They said it was "a pretty serious situation" and are now pondering whether they should welcome De Gaulle to a cocktail party in Ottawa. I'm not nearly so alarmed, but then I don't live in Canada. But something good may come from all of this. For instance, the French Canadians can begin fighting a guerrilla war, with De Gaulle and France as father protectors. That, of course, would give us a chance to condemn him in much the same fashion as he has us. There is only one big drawback. In view of his past record in these affairs, he'd lose the bloody war and leave the whole mess in our laps.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter about a man who committed suicide because of the insults and the smart cracks about a physical handicap which he was supposed to accept as jokes.

It might be useful if you would print a letter from an abnormal individual who knows only too well what it is like.

Here is my story: I have been extremely overweight since I was a young boy. I have undergone every test imaginable and the results are always the same—no organic problem. I am on a constant diet which keeps me at 400 pounds. This is all I can hope for.

I am employed by a small firm because the top companies in this field will not hire me. I can't get insurance. No girl will ever marry me. My best friend apologized for being unable to have me in his wedding party because I would "ruin the looks of the ceremony." I could write a book about the clothing industry and their treatment of oversized people. The only thing I can say about American cars is that they are better than foreign cars. I have to pay $5,000 for a car I can get into and drive.

The chairs in most theaters, restaurants and sports arenas make it impossible for me to enjoy a night out. If I fly I must travel first class since tourist seats are too small. Hotels and motels have turned me away because they were afraid I would break the beds and chairs. When I visit friends I am constantly being asked to "sit down." The truth is that very few chairs are built to support a person who weighs 400 pounds.

The Armed Forces turned me down. So did the Peace Corps. Excessively obese people can't ever serve their country. So you see, Ann, it isn't only the insults and jokes and the stares of little children that drive me to the brink. It's the denial of so many things most people take for granted. The worst of it is knowing that the future holds nothing for me but more of the same. — FREAK OF THE ENTIRE STATE

Dear Friend: While I sympathize with you, as I sympathize with all people who are wretchedly unhappy, I am baffled as to why you have resigned yourself to remaining a 400-pounder forever when the tests show no organic abnormalities. The obvious conclusion is that you are obese because you are a compulsive eater. You did not ask for advice, but I would feel remiss in my duty if I did not offer it. Go to a psychiatrist and learn why you insist on maintaining this fortress of flesh around yourself. From whom are you hiding?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 but nobody would guess it. For over a year I have been served cocktails in several bars and no one has even asked to see my ID card.

My problem is a fellow who is 23. He looks like John Forsythe and we are in love. Unfortunately he has had some trouble with the law (not his fault) and my folks have told me I can't date him. His parents like me and they say I am very good for him. They say if my folks throw me out I can live with them. How can I get my folks to be reasonable? — SAD TEEN

Dear Teen: You're going to be a lot sadder if you don't quit drinking cocktails and running around with a fellow who is five years too old for you. Don't try to be a parole officer. And, furthermore, if you are smart you will listen to YOUR parents, not his.

Barbara Graves Is Wed
In First Baptist Church

Miss Barbara Lynn Graves and Daniel Ray Cole were united in marriage in a double ring service at 2 p.m. on July 15, 1967 in the First Baptist Church in Warren. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Graves, 327 Yankee Bush Road, and the groom is the son of Mrs. William Timmins, 104 West 5th st., and Ray D. Cole, 228 Pennsylvania ave., West.

The Reverend Howard R. Faulkner officiated at the ceremony which was attended by 100 guests. Mrs. Briggs was organist for the service and Jack Haight was soloist. White gladioli and palms formed the church decorations and white satin streamers with lilies of the valley marked the family pews.

Escorted by her father, the bride approached the altar wearing a white formal-length satin gown fashioned with an empire waistline, A-line skirt, and scalloped neckline. The bodice and short sleeves were of daisy lace and a detachable train of white lace over satin was secured at the waistline. A white satin pill-box and fingertip veil formed her headpiece. She carried a colonial arrangement of white roses centered with a yellow rose corsage. Her only jewelry was a silver cross pendant, a gift of the groom. Mrs. Frank Almendinger of Warren, the bride's grandmother, fashioned the bride's party's gowns.

Mrs. Neal Cole, sister-in-law of the groom, was matron of honor. Miss Robin Graves, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both wore white lace over mint green formal-length gowns and cabbage rose headpieces and carried a single long-stemmed yellow rose.

Mrs. Frank Almendinger, grandmother of the bride, was favored with a white carnation corsage.

Following the service, a reception for 90 guests was held in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church. White streamers, white bells, and multi-colored rose bouquets formed the decorations which centered around the four-tier wedding cake topped with a cluster of yellow roses and lace bells. Silver candelabra holding yellow tapers added the finishing touches to the decorations.

Aides for the reception were Mrs. Chester Johnson Jr., Mrs. Clair Benson, Mrs. Joseph Campagna, Mrs. Myron Nelson and Miss Shirley Almendinger.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

Notes On Knees

I'm a mini-skirt fan. I'd like to know how to make my knees look more attractive. They're rather rough and discolored.

Treat your knees to a daily sudsy scrub with a brush. Rubbing with the cut side of a lemon or cucumber will help bleach out discolorations. There are several creams and packs on the market which do the job well, too.

Smooth on baby oil or lotion before bedtime to speed roughness away.

Leg make-up need not be considered only a summertime aid. It's time for perking up your knee appeal at any time of the year.

RAG DOLL SHAKE

When I first wake up in the morning, I'm so tired I can hardly force myself to get going once I get out of bed. Do you know of any quick waker-upper routine?

Get wide awake with the Rag Doll Shake! Stand in front of an open window, bend forward from the waist and let your head and arms go completely limp. Then shake, shake, shake. The revivifying effect of blood rushing to your head will help drive away early morning lethargy.

Spring to a standing position and jump up and down several times to give your whole body a vertical shake-up that will keep you jumping all day long.

I've tried various sprays designed to add gloss and shine to the hair, but they give a stiff effect and the odor is heavy. Is there any other way to make my hair shine and control wispliness?

Rub the tiniest drop of pomade on your palm then run your brush over the pomade before brushing your hair. This process will not only give your hair natural shine, but should also control little tendrils at the hairline and fly-away ends.

How can I learn to say the right thing at the right time? Whenever I open my mouth I seem to commit an awful faux pas.

Think before you speak. Try to put yourself in the other person's place. What kind of response would you like to hear? Remember that you'll never get into trouble for what you don't say, so take the time to mull things over in your mind before you blurt out the retort which seems so marvelously witty until the words are actually said.

I've been using a medicated base. However, the base is making the skin under my eyes feel tight and uncomfortable. Should I stop using it completely?

Continue to use your medicated base everywhere but around the eye area. Under the eyes, use a creamy base that is a shade or two lighter than your regular foundation.

THE GIRLS

By Franklin Folger

Last summer we went on a camping trip. Being a novice camper I naturally forgot several things, one of which was clothespins.

I spied several beverage can rings on the ground and you know what? When you fold the little tab over the clothes on a line, they won't blow off.

So you see, dear Heloise, you really make one stop and think when the occasion arises.

DEAR HELOISE:

How 'bout that! I tried this four times and it really helps to line up the correction to be made.

Let lots of secretaries jump on your idea tomorrow. You dolly!

DEAR HELOISE:

The Fraternal Order of Eagles will be having their annual picnic at the Bullwinkle Club on the Hearts Content Road this Saturday, July 29. Beginning at noon, the picnic will continue all day with dinner being served at 5:30 p. m. Clams, mulligan and a cold lunch in the afternoon are included in the menu.

The picnic is planned for adults only with a $2.00 per person charge being made for members and a $3.00 charge for guest tickets. Tickets may be obtained at the club or at the gate to the picnic grounds. Transportation will be available from the club at noon and 1 p. m.

DEAR HELOISE:

I consider my full-time job of homemaking to be a God-given privilege and will never be guilty of dropping my head and saying, "Oh I'm just a housewife."

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever needed soft butter or margarine to cream for baking, only to discover that you have forgotten to remove it from the freezer and it is much too hard?

If so, just get out your grater and grate it as you would cheese. By the time you have your other ingredients measured, it will be soft enough to cream.

DEAR HELOISE:

When you have to reinsert a sheet of paper in your typewriter in order to correct an error, set the typewriter to "stencil" before typing the first letter.

If the paper is slightly out of place the letter will show a slight indentation. You can then adjust the paper and check again before actually typing the letter with the ribbon.

It saves erasing and making messy corrections.

MRS. SUSAN DAVIS LORE

Mrs. S.D. Lore Celebrates 80th Birthday

Mrs. Susan Davis Lore, 29 Forest ave., Sugar Grove, was honored at an open house for her eightieth birthday given by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Beyer and their children, Sanford, Caroline, Beth and Stuart of Beaver, Pa. Fifty guests were present from Akron, Ohio, Leavitt, Falconer, Randolph and Jamestown, New York, Pleasantville and Warren, Pa., and from Verona, Ont., Canada. Aides were Mrs. Guy J. Summerson and Mrs. Scott Stuart Jr. Beth Beyer was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Lore was born in Sugar Grove and, after her marriage to J. Francis Lore, lived for a time at Beaver, Pa., before returning to Sugar Grove. Before the death of her husband, they wintered at Winter Park, Florida.

A former art teacher at West Pittston, Pa., and Sugar Grove, Mrs. Lore received her schooling at the former Sugar Grove Seminary, Pennsylvania State University, Pratt Institute in Brooklyn and Simmons College in Boston. She is a member of the Sugar Grove Presbyterian Church and its Woman's Organization and of a number of clubs in Sugar Grove and Beaver.

Household Hints

For perfect kabobs every time, pre-cook meats before threading on skewers with fast-cooking fruits and vegetables. All get grilled to proper doneness, without overcooked parts falling on to the coals.

Use a piece of old nylon stocking to apply cleaning fluid when spot-cleaning dark garments. The stocking leaves no lint.

Park-Kilby Nuptials In Florida

Miss Winifred Ann Park of Orlando, Florida, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Park of Clarendon, was married to James Robert Kilby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hulton Kilby of Orlando, Florida, on May 6, 1967 in Holden Heights Methodist Church. The Reverend Morris Shields officiated at the 2:30 p.m. service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza fashioned with a scoop neckline, lifted bodice and chapel skirt. Peau d'ange lace accented the bodice and tiered skirt. She carried a white orchid on a white prayer book.

The reception following the service was held in the recreation hall of the church. After a wedding trip to Treasure Island, Fla., the couple are residing at 320 W. Castle st., Orlando, Fla.

Miss Mercy Yamoah, Ghana school teacher and the daughter of a Methodist minister there, has been named Youth Secretary for the World Council of Christian Education, functionally serving as a member of the WCC's Youth Department. Miss Yamoah will attend the Joint Youth Work Committee meeting and the WCC World Institute in July and come to her Geneva desk in September. After receiving teacher training at Kumasi University, the new youth secretary studied religion at the University of Ghana and took courses in Christian doctrine for two years at Cambridge University.

A message of importance to all people at The Rebellious Age.

There comes a time in your life when it seems absolutely right to rebel against old ideas. Against all the things that seem to be stacked up against your generation.

Unfortunately, religious faith is one of the things that may get discarded right about now.

But should it be?

Your Faith echoes the very feelings you probably have right now. About injustice. Inhumanity. Poverty. Cruelty. Prejudice. Hate.

That's why your Faith is the very thing you should be working with.

It can strengthen you. It can make things happen. In yourself, and in all the world around. But only if you let it. And only if you put it to work.

President John F. Kennedy said: "God's work must truly be our own."

What do you say?

By CLARKE WILLIAMSON

Mrs. Maslak (letter below) makes the intriguing suggestion that, during summer, networks should reshuffle their schedules to put reruns on in different time slots. Many viewers might then see some programs which, ordinarily, they do not. Perhaps the networks would consider the idea impractical or confusing, but they just might discover some shows get better ratings when presented on a different day or at a different hour. They could then schedule the following season's programs to better advantage.

Here is the result of your first ballot on daytime game shows:

Concentration, NBC, 67.3 per cent, good.

Snap Judgment, NBC, 48.4 per cent, average.

Family Game, ABC, 42.3 per cent, below average.

Supermarket Sweep, ABC, 41.8 per cent, below average.

We suggest all new readers join today in this nationwide newspaper TV survey by voting on weekday game shows.

READER'S SPEAK

DEAR TV: Why don't networks exchange material? For instance, on repeats we get the same shows at the same time slots. Why couldn't the 9 to 11 p.m. viewers get a chance to see the 11:30 p.m. movies? Why not avoid a set pattern?—Mrs. Gladys S. Maslak, Windsorville, Conn.

DEAR TV: Why do they have children's programs on so late at night? My children go to bed at 8 p.m. They like several child programs that come on much later. This I cannot understand unless it's the trend to keep children up late.—Mrs. Robert Reed, Beale A.F.B., Calif.

DEAR TV: People wrote for children's points of view. I'm writing for my brother, his boy friend, and myself. Those stupid daytime game shows are as crazy to us as children's shows are to adults. I'm sure many children agree with us. Why don't you ask them!—C.G., F.G., and S.B., Erie, Pa.

DEAR TV: From what I read, next season will top '66-'67 for bad programs—the three major networks are trying hard to do that.—E. M. Kennon, Orlando, Fla.

DEAR TV: Any network that would put Dean Martin on should not be allowed on the air.—Ross Perryman, Waco, Tex.

This is a 3-line Times-Mirror & Observer Want Ad. Most widely read everyday.

The Big Buy

A three-line classified want ad.

It cost Times-Mirror and Observer advertisers $3.00 for this ad on the 7 time person-to-person rate.

It's not very big in size. It's not very imposing. And it doesn't cost very much as you can see. In fact, it looks pretty lonesome up there all by itself. But look at it this way.

What you get when you buy a 3-line ad in the Times-Mirror and Observer is not just a single ad on one of the want ad pages. You've actually bought 13,000 copies of your 3-line ad. And the price includes personal delivery of each copy to the reader's doorstep.

Just imagine the cost of reaching all those Times-Mirror and Observer families by post card. Why, the postage alone would be $520. But the Times-Mirror and Observer does the job for you for less than 80c per day. (Only $3.00 for 7 time person-to-person want ad).

So you can see this little want ad is a really pretty BIG buy.

Into a 10 inch skillet turn all the ingredients except the bread and softened butter. Cook quickly, stirring several times, until mushrooms wilt—about 5 minutes. (Little liquid should collect in pan.) Spread bread slices with extra butter and then with mushroom mixture; there will be about 1 tablespoon for each slice, roll up. Spread outside of rolls with extra butter and place in jelly roll pan. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) until browned—10 minutes or longer, turning halfway through baking time for even browning. Cut rolls in half crosswise and serve at once. Makes 24.

FOR SLEEP-OVER PARTY

The waffles begin with refrigerator biscuits, the chicken a la king with a can of condensed soup, and the fun with cooperative cooking for a brunch to finish off a sleep-over party.

Cook-Along Slumber Party

It's sleep-over party season! Invite the girls to come-along and cook-along at a slumber party.

You'll all share the evening's fun with new ideas about dates and diets, clothes and hair styles. Be a smart hostess and you can lean back and learn at leisure with the rest. Set out corn to pop, and a bowl of fruit for conscience-free nibbling to please the midnight refrigerator raiders. Good for sipping—"V-8" juice either frosty-cold or piping hot in mugs. This midnight fare helps keep skins clear, and saves appetites for brunchtime the next morning—your time to sparkle.

Everybody awake? Combine food and fun with a cook-along brunch, cooperatively made by all. No rehearsal needed, if you have a simple but savory menu ready for the cook-along. Compose your meal so it can really double for breakfast and lunch. Make it friend-filling and flavorful with new and easy cooking techniques to try. Here's a three-part menu in happy harmony—fast and filling:

Orange Juice or Orange-Strawberry Cup
Chicken a la King on Biscuit
Waffles
Extra Biscuits with Jam or Jelly
Hot Cocoa
You show your practical know-how when you plan to serve fast and easy. Whip up a jiffy a la king that begins with a girl's best friend—a handy can of condensed soup, cream of mushroom or cream of chicken. Make minute waffles from refrigerator biscuits.

Flashback: To move your cooking along, check all recipes for your menu before you start shopping; prepare shopping list and buy accordingly. Make a list of everything that has to be done at brunch time. Then cut the list into slips. When cooking time comes around, everyone picks a slip, and joins in. Presto, brunch is served. Eat-along time!

Enjoy Tacos With Shrimp

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
HERE COME TACOS new-style. Served with a delicious shrimp filling and a hot sauce, they charmed all our tasters and the chances are they'll please yours.

The shrimp for the filling comes from convenient cans, chilled in the refrigerator to make the seafood delightfully firm in texture. Canned, frozen or fresh tortillas may be used for the taco so they, too, can be on hand.

SHRIMP TACOS
2 cans (each 4 1/2 ounces) de-veined shrimp, chilled in the can
Oil and Vinegar Dressing (see Note)
10 large-size tortillas, fried taco-style (see recipe)
1 cup grated mild cheddar cheese
2 cups shredded iceberg lettuce
1 cup finely chopped sweet onion
Hot Sauce (see recipe)
Rinse shrimp in cold water and turn into shallow container; cover with Oil and Vinegar Dressing; refrigerate, covered, for 1 hour or longer; stir a few times. At serving time, place tacos on a large serving dish; fill with layers of cheese, lettuce, onion and shrimp; pour marinade from shrimp over the top. Serve at once, accompanied by Hot Sauce. Makes 5 servings—2 tacos per portion.

NOTE: To make the oil and vinegar dressing, thoroughly mix together 6 tablespoons olive oil, 3 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon Dijon mustard and a dash of white pepper.

TORTILLAS, FRIED TACOS-STYLE
Into a deep 8 inch skillet pour 1 1/2 cups salad oil; heat oil. Fold tortillas in half, one at a time; holding rounded edges together with fingers, dip the bottom into the hot fat, until it sets and crisps; slip the edge of a slotted spoon between the folds and quickly press one side under the hot fat, turning the spoon upward to hold the shell open. Fry until crisp and brown; turn and brown the other side, again using the spoon to hold the edges apart. Drain on absorbent paper. Repeat, folding and frying one tortilla at a time until all shells are crisp and brown. Keep in warm oven until all are fried.

NOTE: This method is one used by a man who hails from Texas. If you can't manage it, lower the flat tortilla into the

JELLIED FRUIT
1 can (1 pound and 4 1/2 ounces) pineapple slices
1 can (1 pound and 13 ounces) Bartlett pear halves
1 package (3 ounces) straw-berry-punch flavor gelatin dessert
1 cup dry white wine (such as a domestic Sylvaner)
Into a 1 quart glass measure thoroughly drain the syrup from the pineapple and the pear halves; pour 2 cups of the syrup into a 1-quart saucepan; bring almost to boiling. Add the gelatin dessert; stir until dissolved; stir in the white wine. In a glass bowl (at least 1 1/2 quarts) arrange the drained pineapple and pear halves (alternately if possible); gently pour the gelatin mixture over them. Cover and chill overnight so flavors have a chance to blend thoroughly. Serve from bowl. Makes 10 servings.

INSTANT WAFFLES
1 package (8 ounces) refrigerated biscuits
Preheat waffle iron to medium-high temperature and grease generously. Bake biscuits 4 to 5 minutes until golden brown. Top with hot chicken a la king.

To help eliminate cooking odors when you are cooking cabbage, put a slice of bread on top of the cabbage when it is cooking. Throw the bread out.

Potato Pie From France

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

ITS POTATO PIE from France, and I'll wager you'll never taste better — even if it is an American version of the French original.

How did I come by this treasure of a recipe? A friend of mine, like myself, is a great admirer of the late Louis Diat who was the famed chef of the old Ritz-Carlton Hotel. She translated the Diat recipe into quick-cooking American practice and passed it along to us. First change in this transformation was to use the wonderfully convenient frozen peeled potatoes and chopped onions available in freezer cabinets in American food markets. This change saves so much peeling and chopping that in my kitchen it took not much more than half an hour to prepare the pastry, assemble the pie and put it in the oven.

However, if you prefer a two-step way, you can prepare the pastry for the pie one day, then fill and bake it the next. Serve it as a hot main dish (along with a salad) for lunch, or offer it with meat, poultry or fish (plus salad) for a buffet supper or a sit-down-dinner. The pie is also delicious cold — great to carry to a picnic.

GREAT PICNIC FIRE

This French Potato Pie is as delicious served cold as it is when it is offered hot.

baking dish — 11 1/2 by 13 1/2 inches. Fit pastry into dish, fill with potato mixture, dot with butter. Trim pastry even with edge of dish. Roll out remaining pastry and place it over potatoes; trim 1 inch beyond edge of dish; fold under the bottom pastry; flute edge and cut four 3 inch slits in top.

Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven to 1 to 1 1/2 hours or until potatoes are tender when tested with a fork. The pastry is lightly browned. Remove from oven. Slowly pour the cream into the slits. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

SPECIAL PASTRY
2 1/4 cups sifted regular flour

1 cup shortening
1 cup (1 stick) butter
4 tablespoons cold water

Sift the flour and salt into a mixing bowl. With a pastry blender, cut in shortening until particles are the size of peas. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the water over part of the mixture. Lightly mix with a fork until flour is absorbed, then pass the rest in the same way. Add the remaining water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until the dough comes together. Roll out the dough with a rolling pin. Wrap in saran. Chill. Use as directed on French Potato Pie.

Rangetop Main Dish Suits Summer

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

WARM — WEATHER COOKS who are on the lookout for main dishes that may be cooked on top of the range may be interested to try this new combination. Inspired by Japanese cuisine, it teams tuna with such a good combination of fresh vegetables as carrot, scallion, celery and spinach. Canned bamboo shoots are added, too, and they help to make the dish interesting.

SUMMER COOKING

A skillet-style combination of tuna and vegetables makes a satisfying main dish for lunch or supper.

SKILLET-STYLE TUNA AND VEGETABLES
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup thinly sliced carrots (cut in 2 inch lengths)
1 cup diagonally sliced scallions
1 cup diagonally sliced celery
2 cans (each 7 ounces) solid white meat tuna, drained and broken into chunks
1 can (5 ounces) sliced bamboo shoots, drained
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1/2 cup dry sherry
1 vegetable bouillon cube dissolved in 1/2 cup hot water
1/4 pound spinach, knife-shredded coarsely
Hot cooked rice
Soy sauce

In a large skillet over moderate

low heat, melt the butter, add carrots, scallions and celery; cook until crisp-tender. Add tuna, bamboo shoots, seasonings, sherry and bouillon. Stir. Cover. Makes 4 servings.

Weekday Lunch

Quick way to make a soup that ordinarily takes hours.

Hot Beet Soup with New Potatoes and Sour Cream
Egg Sandwiches
Fruit

HOT BEET SOUP
1 can (17 1/2 ounces) dry onion soup mix
1 quart boiling water
1 beef bouillon cube
1 can (1 pound) julienne beets (less 1/2 cup of the drained beets)
1 medium carrot, pared and finely grated
1 whole clove and 1 large bay leaf
2 pinches thyme
1 large clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1/2 teaspoon white pepper

Bring the dry soup mix, boiling water and bouillon cube to a boil, stirring often; add the remaining ingredients, including beet juice; partially cover and simmer about half an hour. Serve with a boiled potato in each soup dish and a topping of sour cream. Makes about 1 1/2 quarts.

Baby 'Talk' May Show Intelligence

By JANE DRODY
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—A 40-week-old baby who has been making sounds that are a step beyond the ordinary cooing and gurgling of infants, is being studied by a group of scientists at the University of California, Berkeley, to determine if the sounds are a sign of intelligence.

Developmental psychologist, Dr. Robert R. LeVine, who is leading the study, said the baby, who is now 40 weeks old, has been making sounds that are a step beyond the ordinary cooing and gurgling of infants. The sounds are a series of short, sharp, whistle-like sounds that are not usually heard in infants of this age.

Bonn Disagrees With De Gaulle

By DAVID BINDER
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
BONN — Chancellor Kurt
Georg Kiesinger told President Charles de Gaulle last week he plainly disagreed with the French leader's estimate of the role of the United States in Europe, a high German authority said yesterday.

During their talks July 12 and 13 de Gaulle warned against the danger of U.S. power
"dominating" Europe. He later released some of his remarks in a public statement. At the time Kiesinger remained silent.

But the Bonn government evidently wanted the U.S. to know that it did not share de Gaulle's view. Hence correspondents were called in today to be given a background report of Kiesinger's position.
The chancellor was said to have told de Gaulle that Germany did not want to be dominated by the Soviet Union either.

The German source said de Gaulle again accused Kiesinger of having a satellite complex toward the U.S., as he had done in their earlier meeting in January. The chancellor has dismissed this charge in public.
The source added that Kiesinger and the French leader flatly disagreed on several points in their concept of what a European policy should be.

Rejecting de Gaulle's belief that the U.S. is moving with milk toward "benevolent domination" of Europe, the chancellor is said to have retorted:
"Very well, we, too, see that we cannot let things run by themselves, that Europe has a duty to develop its powers to be a stronger partner of the United States, but in cooperation with the United States.
Furthermore we have the impression that the United States is interested, too in a greater European specific weight."

The chancellor was also said to have spoken plainly to de Gaulle on the controversial subject of Britain's entry into the European Common Market, which France opposes.
Kiesinger tried to make it clear that sooner or later
France would have to reconcile herself to the addition of Britain and other European countries to the six-nation organization.

At present, in view of the French leader's opposition to entry of others, all West
Germany could do was offer
"small services" to the outsiders, the chancellor reportedly believes.
Among these services was the airing of concrete questions of economic eligibility of Britain and other countries, it was said. Beyond this Kiesinger believes the cause of European unity could be better served by frequent "ad hoc meetings" of high European officials on crucial subjects, the sources said.

promiser
